Artistic Japan Siegfried Bing, 1890 The Empty Museum Masaaki Morishita, 2016-03-23 This book examines the processes through which public art museums as modern Western institutions were introduced to Japan in the late nineteenth century and how they subsequently developed distinctive national characteristics The author focuses on one of the most distinctive forms of Japanese museums the empty museums museums without collections permanent displays and curators Morishita shows how they developed in relation to social and cultural conditions at certain periods in modern Japanese history by engaging with a wide range of interdisciplinary theories in particular Pierre Bourdieu s field theory and the conceptual framework of transculturation Japan is used as a case study to show in general terms how the elements of modern Western culture associated with public art museums were introduced and transformed in the local conditions of non Western regions With its unique empirical cases and theoretical focus the book makes a significant contribution to existing literature in the field of museum studies both in the English speaking world and in Japan and will be of interest to scholars and students of sociology art history cultural studies and Japanese studies The Politics of Painting Asato Ikeda, 2018-05-31 This book examines a set of paintings produced in Japan during the 1930s and early 1940s that have received little scholarly attention Asato Ikeda views the work of four prominent artists of the time Yokoyama Taikan Yasuda Yukihiko Uemura Sh en and Fujita Tsuguharu through the lens of fascism showing how their seemingly straightforward paintings of Mount Fuji samurai beautiful women and the countryside supported the war by reinforcing a state ideology that justified violence in the name of the country s cultural authenticity She highlights the politics of apolitical art and challenges the postwar labeling of battle paintings those depicting scenes of war and combat as uniquely problematic Yokoyama Taikan produced countless paintings of Mount Fuji as the embodiment of Japan's national body and spirituality in contrast to the modern West's individualism and materialism Yasuda Yukihiro located Japan in the Minamoto warriors of the medieval period depicting them in the Yamato-e style which is defined as classically Japanese Uemura Shōen sought to paint the quintessential Japanese woman drawing on the Edo period bijin ga beautiful women genre while alluding to noh aesthetics and wartime gender expectations For his subjects Fujita Tsuguharu looked to the rural snow country where it was believed authentic Japanese traditions could still be found Although these artists employed different styles and favored different subjects each maintained close ties with the state and presented what he considered to be the most representative and authentic portrayal of Japan Throughout Ikeda takes into account the changing relationships between visual iconography artistic style and its significance by carefully situating artworks within their specific historical and cultural moments She reveals the global dimensions of wartime nationalist Japanese art and opens up the possibility of dialogue with scholarship on art produced in other countries around the same time particularly Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy The Politics of Painting will be welcomed by those interested in modern Japanese art and visual culture and war art and fascism Its analysis of painters and painting within larger currents in intellectual history will attract scholars of modern Japanese and East Asian studies

Modern Japanese Art and the Meiji State Dōshin Satō, 2011 This is an insightful and intelligent rethinking of Japanese art history its Western influences This broad ranging and profoundly influential analysis describes how Western art institutions and vocabulary were transplanted to Japan in the late nineteenth century In the 1870-80s artists and government administrators in Japan encountered the Western system of the arts for the first time Under pressure to exhibit and sell its artistic products abroad Japan's new Meiji government came face to face with the need to create European style art schools and museums and even to establish Japanese words for art painting artist and sculpture Modern Japanese Art is a full re-conceptualization of the field of Japanese art history exposing the politics through which the words categories and values that structure our understanding of the field came to be while revealing the historicity of Western and non-Western art history

Jonathan Glynn, Fiona Hackney, Minton, Viv, 2010-06 Networks of Design maps a new methodological territory in design studies conceived as a field of interdisciplinary inquiry and practice informed by a range of responses to actor network theory. It brings together a rich body of current work by researchers in the social sciences, technology, material culture, cultural geography, information technology, and systems design, and design theory and history. This collection will be invaluable to students and researchers in many areas of design studies and to design practitioners receptive to new and challenging notions of what constitutes the design process. Over ninety essays are thematically organised to address five aspects of the expanded notions of mediation, agency, and collaboration posited by network theory: Ideas, Things, Technology, Texts, and People. The collection also includes an important new essay on rethinking the concept of design by Bruno Latour, one of the most influential figures in the philosophy and sociology of science and technology, and a pioneer of actor network theory, and essays deriving from forum discussions involving designers and designer-makers responsive to actor network theory. Rather than an anthology of previously published essays, Networks of Design presents work in progress on design theory and its applications. It is the outcome of a live and vigorous debate on the possibilities and actualities offered by actor network-led conceptualisations of the relationships and processes constituting design. All the essays, many collaborative, derive from papers presented at the international conference of the Design History Society held at University College Falmouth, UK, in the Autumn of 2008.
