Edinburgh History of Children's Periodicals Michelle J. Smith, Beth Rodgers, Kristine Moruzi, 2024-04-30 Since the publication of the first children's periodical in the 1750s magazines have been an affordable and accessible way for children to read and form virtual communities Despite the range of children's periodicals that exist they have not been studied to the same extent as children's literature The Edinburgh History of Children's Periodicals marks the first major history of magazines for young people from the mid eighteenth century to the present Bringing together periodicals from Britain Ireland North America Australia New Zealand and India this book explores the roles of gender race and national identity in the construction of children as readers and writers It provides new insights both into how child readers shaped the magazines they read and how magazines have encouraged children to view themselves as political and world subjects

Child Autonomy and Child Governance in Children's Literature Christopher Kelen, Bjorn Sundmark, 2016-11-18 This book explores representations of child autonomy and self governance in children's literature The idea of child rule and child realms is central to children's literature and childhood is frequently represented as a state of being with children seen as aliens in need of passports to Adultland and vice versa In a sense all children's literature depends on the idea that children are different separate and in command of their own imaginative spaces and places Although the idea of child rule is a persistent theme in discussions of children's literature or about children and childhood the metaphor itself has never been properly unpacked with critical reference to examples from those many texts that are contingent on the authority and or power of children Child governance and autonomy can be seen as natural or perverse it can be displayed as a threat or as a promise Accordingly the child rule motif can be seen in Robinsonades and horror films in philosophical treatises and in series fiction The representations of self ruling children are manifold and ambivalent and range from the idyllic to the nightmarish Contributors to this volume visit a range of texts in which children are in various ways empowered discussing whether childhood itself may be thought of as a nationality and what that may imply This collection shows how representations of child governance have been used for different ideological aesthetic and pedagogical reasons and will appeal to scholars of children s literature childhood studies and cultural studies

Children Reading Picturebooks Evelyn Arizpe, Morag Styles, 2015-11-27 Children Reading Pictures has made a huge impact on teachers scholars and students all over the world The original edition of this book described the fascinating range of children s responses to contemporary picturebooks which proved that they are sophisticated readers of visual texts and are able to make sense of complex images on literal visual and metaphorical levels Through this research the authors found that children are able to understand different viewpoints analyse moods messages and emotions and articulate personal responses to picture books even when they struggle with the written word The study of picturebooks and children s responses to them has increased dramatically in the 12 years since the first edition was published Fully revised with a review of the most recent theories and critical work related to picturebooks and meaning making this new edition demonstrates how vital visual literacy is to children s understanding and development The second edition Includes three new case studies that address social issues special needs and metafiction Summarises key finding from research with culturally diverse children Draws upon new research on response to digital picturebooks Provides guidelines for those contemplating research on response to picturebooks This book is essential reading for undergraduate and postgraduate students of children s literature as well as providing important reading for Primary and Early Years teachers literacy co ordinators and all those interested in picturebooks
