Most Wonderful Machine Judith A. McGaw, 2019-01-15 On a visit to a Berkshire paper mill the narrator of Herman Melville's The Tartarus of Maids views the wonderful papermaking machine with awe and calls it a miracle of inscrutable intricacy Manifesting in their factories and towns such nineteenth century fascination with machinery paper mill owners and workers made an industrial revolution in Berkshire County Massachusetts This book examines their experiences from the era of craft production through several generations of sustained technological change to answer two major questions What accounts for the widespread and rapid adoption of machines in nineteenth century America And how did the new technology help to transform America socially and culturally Rejecting technological determinism Judith McGaw effectively integrates labor business social and women's history with technological history to bring to life the human decisions that made mechanization possible In compelling detail the author offers new explanations of how change in the craft era paved the way for industrialization and how paternalism worked in small scale industry She also provides a thoughtful discussion of the interaction between evangelical culture and the emerging industrial order and a close analysis of how nineteenth century gender distinctions fostered mechanization Judith A McGaw is Assistant Professor of History of Technology at the University of Pennsylvania Originally published in 1987 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

The Line's Eye Elisa New, 1998 Is American vision implicitly possessive as a generation of critics contends By viewing the American poetic tradition through the prism of pragmatism Elisa New contests this claim A new reading of how poetry sees her work is a passionate defense of the power of the poem the ethics of perception and the broader possibilities of American sight American poems see more fully and less invasively than accounts of American literature as an inscription of imperial national ideology would allow Moreover New argues their ways of seeing draw on and develop a vigorous mode of national representation alternative to the appropriative sort found in the quintessential American genre of encounter the romance Grounding her readings of Dickinson Frost Moore and Williams in foundational texts by Edwards Jefferson Audubon and Thoreau New shows how varieties of attentiveness and solicitude cultivated in the early literature are realized in later poetry She then discloses how these ideas infuse the philosophical notions about pragmatic experience codified by Emerson James and Dewey As these philosophers insisted and as New's readings prove art is where the experience of experience can be had to read as to write a poem is to let the line guide one's way

Machine Art in the Twentieth Century Andreas Broeckmann, 2016-12-23 An investigation of artists engagement with technical systems tracing art historical lineages that connect works of different periods Machine art is neither a movement nor a genre but encompasses diverse ways in which artists engage with technical systems In this book Andreas Broeckmann examines a variety of twentieth and early twenty first century artworks that articulate people s relationships with machines In the course of his investigation Broeckmann traces historical lineages that connect art of different periods looking for continuities that link works from the end of the century to developments in the 1950s and 1960s and to works by avant garde artists in the 1910s and 1920s An art historical perspective he argues might change our views of recent works that seem to be driven by new media technologies but that in fact continue a century old artistic exploration Broeckmann investigates critical aspects of machine aesthetics that characterized machine art until the 1960s and then turns to specific domains of artistic engagement with technology algorithms and machine autonomy looking in particular at the work of the Canadian artist David Rokeby vision and image and the advent of technical imaging and the human body using the work of the Australian artist Stelarc as an entry point to art that couples the machine to the body mechanically or cybernetically Finally Broeckmann argues that systems thinking and ecology have brought about a fundamental shift in the meaning of technology which has brought with it a rethinking of human subjectivity He examines a range of artworks including those by the Japanese artist Seiko Mikami whose work exemplifies the shift
