

Joseph J. Hickey, wildlife ecology professor at the University of Wisconsin describes raptor trappers: "Officially, they want to band birds to learn about their weight and moult, their later movements, their longevity, and all that. Underneath, they are unabashed admirers of the wildness, magnificent strength, and awesome flight of creatures at the top of the animal pyramid. . . they have a youthful zest, and they will endure any hardship and go to any length to catch their birds. Fran is one of these youthful persons. In her own light-hearted way, she portrays here the fascinating development of raptor-trapping techniques in the past few decades, a development in which she played a leading role."

Birding with a Purpose is illustrated by Jack Oar, a bird bander and falconer hobbyist. He has made six annual trips as a member of the Greenland Peregrine Falcon Survey to study and band, and delights in flying his own falcon in the West.

Birding with a Purpose Frances Hamerstrom, 1984 Falconry. Emma Ford, 1998 Rachel Carson and Her Sisters Robert K Musil, 2014-04-01 In Rachel Carson and Her Sisters Robert K Musil redefines the achievements and legacy of environmental pioneer and scientist Rachel Carson linking her work to a wide network of American women activists and writers and introducing her to a new contemporary audience Rachel Carson was the first American to combine two longstanding but separate strands of American environmentalism the love of nature and a concern for human health Widely known for her 1962 best seller Silent Spring Carson is today often perceived as a solitary great woman whose work single handedly launched a modern environmental movement But as Musil demonstrates Carson's life's work drew upon and was supported by already existing movements many led by women in conservation and public health On the fiftieth anniversary of her death this book helps underscore Carson's enduring environmental legacy and brings to life the achievements of women writers and advocates such as Ellen Swallow Richards Dr Alice Hamilton Terry Tempest Williams Sandra Steingraber Devra Davis and Theo Colborn all of whom overcame obstacles to build and lead the modern American environmental movement
