

A fresco from the Villa of the Papyri in Herculaneum, showing a bird perched on a fountain. The bird, likely a stork or heron, is depicted in profile, facing left, with its head turned slightly towards the viewer. It has a long, straight beak and is perched on the edge of a square fountain. The fountain has a central column with a small, circular basin at the base. The background is a dark, textured surface, possibly representing a wall or a cave. The overall style is characteristic of ancient Roman wall painting.
