Biographical Memoirs National Academy of Sciences, 1987-01-01 Biographic Memoirs Volume 56 contains the biographies of deceased members of the National Academy of Sciences and bibliographies of their published works Each biographical essay was written by a member of the Academy familiar with the professional career of the deceased For historical and bibliographical purposes these volumes are worth returning to time and again Respiration and metabolism of embryonic vertebrates Roger S. Seymour, 2012-12-06 The papers in this volume were presented at an international symposium held in South Australia on September 8-10 1983 The purpose of the meeting was to present the comparative physiology of gas exchange water balance and energetics of developing vertebrate embryos contributions were invited from leading research workers in an attempt to represent the forefront of investigation of all vertebrate classes and to promote a broadly comparative approach to the study of embryonic physiology These proceedings therefore reflect the current level of research activity focusing on each group of vertebrates While considerable expansion and specialization has occurred in the area of avian embryos over the last decade work on reptilian embryos is less developed and that on fish and amphibians is still in its infancy Although a great deal is known about respiration and metabolism in embryos of placental mammals the physiology associated with the curious mode of development of monotreme and marsupial embryos has not been examined until recently In this symposium the well studied vertebrate classes are represented primarily by specific research papers that document original work These are balanced by more extensive reviews of the lesser known classes

Smithsonian Year Smithsonian Institution, 1969 Naturalists on the Isthmus of Panama Stanley Heckadon Moreno, 2004 Mammalian Faunal Zones of the Bridger Middle Eocene Charles Lewis Gazin, 1976 Smithsonian Contributions to Paleobiology, 1975 The Birds of the Republic of Panama, Vol. 2 Alexander Wetmore, 2017-11-23 Excerpt from The Birds of the Republic of Panama Vol 2 Columbidae Pigeons to Picidae Woodpeckers The first section of this account of the avifauna of the Isthmus of Panama published December 27 1965 covered the 202 species in the 35 families from the Tinamidae tinamous to the Rynchopidae skimmers The 18 families in this second part include 208 species in the groups remaining in the systematic sequence to the great order of the Passeriformes the perching birds As in the first part the individual accounts include a summary of what is known of each species based on personal observation and on the published records of others A further season of field work from January to March 1966 covered the Burica Peninsula in southwestern Chiriqui an area not visited previously and one from which little was known of its natural history It was fortunate that the visit came at that time as forest cover there was being cleared rapidly for agriculture Introductory paragraphs in the first volume outline briefly the physical features of the Republic so these are not repeated here except to note that with continued change in access to more remote areas clearing of forests proceeds with a rapidity alarming in its steady pressure in restriction of the native fauna and flora. In this connection it is a pleasure to record the establishment of the National Park and Biological Reserve of Cerro Campana an interesting region that marks the southern boundary of the mountain flora and fauna of the high lands of western Panama. With this important beginning it is hoped that other areas also may be set aside for the preservation of their natural features. Of equal interest and value is the action of the Ministerio de Agricultura Comercio e Industrias in its Decree No 23 of January 30 1967 which establishes protective measures for the conservation of the native fauna with provision for the establishment of a National Commission concerned with these important matters.
