Bitter Sugar:

The World of Sugar Ulbe Bosma, 2023-05-09 A tour de force of global history Bosma has turned the humble sugar crystal into a mighty prism for understanding aspects of global history and the world in which we live Los Angeles Review of Books The definitive 2 500 year history of sugar and its human costs from its little known origins as a luxury good in Asia to worldwide environmental devastation and the obesity pandemic For most of history humans did without refined sugar After all it serves no necessary purpose in our diets and extracting it from plants takes hard work and ingenuity Granulated sugar was first produced in India around the sixth century BC yet for almost 2 500 years afterward sugar remained marginal in the diets of most people Then suddenly it was everywhere How did sugar find its way into almost all the food we eat fostering illness and ecological crisis along the way The World of Sugar begins with the earliest evidence of sugar production Through the Middle Ages traders brought small quantities of the precious white crystals to rajahs emperors and caliphs But after sugar crossed the Mediterranean to Europe where cane could not be cultivated demand spawned a brutal quest for supply European cravings were satisfied by enslaved labor two thirds of the 12 5 million Africans taken across the Atlantic were destined for sugar plantations By the twentieth century sugar was a major source of calories in diets across Europe and North America Sugar transformed life on every continent creating and destroying whole cultures through industrialization labor migration and changes in diet Sugar made fortunes corrupted governments and shaped the policies of technocrats And it provoked freedom cries that rang with world changing consequences In Ulbe Bosma's definitive telling to understand sugar's past is to glimpse the origins of our own world of corn syrup and ethanol and begin to see the threat that a not so simple commodity poses to our bodies our environment and our communities The Way It Was and Other Writings

Jesús Colón, 1993-01-01 The Way It Was and Other Writings is an autobiographical recollection of life and the evolution of the Puerto Rican community in New York City and its major figures and organizations The book documents the strength spirit of survival and solidarity and life experiences that Colón shared with many other working class migrants and politically radical communities Bitter sugar, 1990 The Lancet, 1845 Bibliography of Agriculture, 1973-10 Functional Characterization of Insect Chemoreceptors: Receptivity Range, Expression and Evolution William B.

Walker, Emmanuelle Jacquin-Joly, Sharon R. Hill, 2016-06-11 Olfaction and taste are of critical importance to insects and other animals since vital behaviours including mate food and host seeking as well as predator and toxin avoidance are guided by chemosensory cues Mate and habitat choice are to a large extent determined by chemical signals and chemoreceptors contribute accordingly to pre mating isolation barriers and speciation In addition to fundamental physiological ecological and evolutionary consideration the knowledge of insect taste and especially olfaction is also of great importance to human economies since it facilitates a more informed approach to the management of insect pests of agricultural crops and forests and insect vectors of disease Chemoreceptors which bind to external chemical signals and then transform and send the sensory information to the brain are at the core of the peripheral olfactory and gustatory system and have thus been the focus of recent research in chemical ecology. Specifically, emphasis has been placed on functional characterization of olfactory receptor genes which are derived from three large gene families: namely the odorant receptors, gustatory receptors, and ionotropic receptors. Spatial expression patterns of olfactory receptors in diverse chemosensory tissues provide information on divergent functions with regards to ecologically relevant behaviours. On the other hand, characterization of olfactory receptor activation profiles or deorphanization provides complementary data on the molecular range of receptivity to the fundamental unit of the olfactory sense. The aim of this Research Topic is to give an update on the breadth and depth of research currently in progress related to understanding the molecular mechanisms of insect chemoreception with specific emphasis on the olfactory receptors.

Abiotic stress mechanisms and enhancement in crops: Physiological and biochemical approaches Arpna Kumari, Milan Skalicky, Hirofumi Saneoka, Ibrahim Al-Ashkar, 2024-08-20 Changes in natural ecosystems can affect biodiversity on a global scale which in turn affects global food production. Climate change develops under different environmental conditions such as high CO₂ concentration, ultraviolet radiation, temperature, salinity, rainfall intensity etc, causing an increase in the growth of new weeds and pathogens. All these factors alone and in complex can reduce growth, complicate photosynthesis, and reduce the physiological and biochemical responses of plants. On the other hand, studies in recent years have shown that the development of a dual strategy of breeding for stress tolerance and introducing stress tolerant plants into production systems to increase their resistance to various stresses is particularly relevant today. Therefore, research related to physiological, biochemical, and molecular responses of plants is of paramount importance to authorize the effects of climate-induced stresses and the likely mechanisms of resistance and/or factors mitigating these stresses in crop plants. Climate change is a dynamic, multifaceted system of modifications to environmental conditions that include abiotic and biotic factors in the world. Therefore, rapid development of studies on the integration between physiological, biochemical, and molecular responses that can admit a systems analysis of plants is important, and knowledge of molecular mechanisms will provide breeding programs with relevance to obtaining cultivars tolerant to abiotic stresses with increased productivity. Under this research topic, reviews, new methods, and scientific articles will be selected for publication based on applications to agriculture under climate change. This research topic will cover the following themes: Adaptive capacity of plants to withstand climate change; The role of biodiversity in sustainable agriculture; Manipulation of microclimate for plant productivity; Role of plant extracts in
