

An illustration of a man and a woman in a rural setting. The man is shirtless and muscular, leaning over the woman. The woman is wearing a red headscarf and a patterned dress. They are in a close embrace, looking at each other. In the background, there is a small wooden cabin and a forest. The scene is set during sunset or sunrise, with a warm glow in the sky.

sublimation as an unfinished Freudian concept bound up with a much wider history of philosophical and literary reflection Exploring the misunderstanding and reinvention of sublimation both in accounts of cultural history and in Lacan's celebrated reading of Antigone Thurston challenges some of the prevalent assumptions still seen in contemporary theory Thurston links his critical investigation of psychoanalysis to modernist literature discovering both parallels and alternatives to Freud's idea of sublimation in little known works by May Sinclair and David Jones The study concludes by arguing that these modernist artists both of whom were significantly affected by trauma during the First World War produced work radically at odds with the established canons of representation and that this anti hermeneutic art can be linked to a Copernican sublimation a process not controlled by the ego but vitalizing it and decentring its habitual structure Tales of Folk & Fey Melissa
