Creative Holiday Learning Timothy Tuck, 2005 Transforming Preschool Storytime Betsy

Diamant-Cohen, Melanie A. Hetrick, 2013-06-18 According to recent research the best way to make new connections in a child's brain is by building on something already known. A child who loves a book will listen to it repeatedly maintaining interest. Using a selected book in a number of consecutive preschool storytimes but presenting it differently each time can help children learn new skill sets. This book presents a new approach to storytime one that employs repetition with variety to create an experience which helps children connect and engage with the story on a higher level. Diamant Cohen recently awarded the 2013 ASCLA Leadership and Professional Achievement Award and Hetrick offer a year's worth of activities specifically designed to address multiple intelligences through a repetition based process. Incorporating recent theories on developmental learning this book includes Scripts for 8 different books with enough activities to repeat each one for six weeks along with lists of optional alternative books. Planning aids such as outlines of storytime sessions a fill in the blanks planning sheet questions for evaluation and tips for enhanced storytimes using props and crafts. Detailed but straightforward explanations of theory and research that will help readers communicate effectively with parents caregivers and other stakeholders. Emerging Literacy: Unlocking Instruction for Every Child James McTaggart, James Cook, Rebecca Castelo, Jennifer Pickering, 2024-11-25 Being able to read and write with ease does not just open up imagination and learning it also helps us to thrive and cope in a world increasingly based on complex information from coding to utility bills Everyone wants children to make the best start with literacy but despite the existence of evidence based programmes of instruction some do not respond as hoped at first or show a fade in learning in later school years This book is about why that happens and what we can do about it Drawing on research and the wide expertise of its authors it sets out how lifelong literacy is based on crucial aspects of early child development and how these can be assessed and improved in classrooms The book focuses on five core emerging literacy skills that underpin successful learning for children concepts of print phonological awareness oral language working memory and executive function and pencil control Chapters Guide the reader on how to build the foundations of lifelong literacy as well as easy to do unintrusive means to assess the different strengths and gaps that learners have Explore how teaching and learning can be adjusted so that all can learn and make progress Contain inexpensive and playful but effective and practical ways to develop the skills in an ordinary classroom or home Are accompanied by a downloadable practical toolkit of resources to use with children Educators who use this book and reflect on and adapt its ideas will be more confident in what they are doing with an enriched understanding of why it fits the children they are educating It will be crucial reading for early years educators primary classroom practitioners educational psychologists and speech and language therapists Logic as a Positive Science Galvano Della Volpe, 2020-05-05 Logic as a Positive Science represents the fruit of more than two decades of the philosophical work of Galvano Della Volpe Its publication was first announced in 1947 under the title Critica del Conosci te stesso Critique of Know Thyself and in 1948 as the second edition of Critica dei principi logici Critique of Logical Principles a study of Kant and Hegel first published in the early 1940s before Delia Volpe became a Marxist As late as January 1951 an article in the journal Pensiero critico announced it yet again this time as Introduzione materialistica alla logica Materialist Introduction to Logic But this article was published many months after its submission to the journal and the first edition of Logica come scienza positiva had in fact appeared in August 1950 The central concern of Logic as a Positive Science is to establish a scientific logic free of any aprioristic speculation Delia Volpe argues that there can be no specifically philosophical logic or method of producing true knowledge On the contrary there is only one logic and one method that of modern experimental science The establishment of this proposition is according to the dictates of his method itself part and parcel of a description of what that logic is and how it is distinct from and superior to any other Della Volpe maintains that the liberation of philosophy from idealist speculation is itself a historical process and critical consideration of that process is integral to the constitution of a genuinely scientific logic and methodology
