Epidemiology C. Janes,R. Stall,S.M. Gifford,2012-12-06 Over the past two decades increasing interest has emerged in the contributions that the social sciences might make to the epidemiological study of patterns of health and disease Several reasons can be cited for this increasing interest Primary among these has been the rise of the chronic non infectious diseases as important causes of morbidity and mortality within Western populations during the 20th century Generally speaking the chronic non infectious diseases are strongly influenced by lifestyle variables which are themselves strongly influenced by social and cultural forces The understanding of the effects of the behavioral factors in say hypertension thus requires an understanding of the social and cultural factors which encourage obesity a sedentary lifestyle non compliance with anti hypertensive medications or other prescribed regimens and stress Equally there is a growing awareness that considerations of human behavior and its social and cultural determinants are important for understanding the distribution and control of infectious diseases Related to this expansion of epidemiologic interest into the behavioral realm has been the development of etiological models which focus on the psychological biological and socio cultural characteristics of hosts rather than exclusive concern with exposure to a particular agent or even behavioral risk Also during this period advances in statistical and computing techniques have made accessible the ready testing of multivariate causal models and so have encouraged the measurement of the effects of social and cultural factors on disease occurrence Memory and Affect in Development

Charles A. Nelson,2014-02-25 As in recent years a thematic concept was selected over a general one for the 26th annual Minnesota Symposium on Child Psychology In this case the relation between memory and affect was targeted for two reasons The first concerned the a priori theoretical relation between these content areas The second concerned the observation that memory and affect have historically been studied as separate content areas an unfortunate decision considering the potential of each area to inform the other To redress this investigators working on the relation between memory and affect were identified Their presentations are also anchored by one or two presentations on either memory or affect Those familiar with the broader domain of developmental psychology will readily identify this volume in the series as filling the void left by the lack of integration across domains of study Resources in Education ,1980-12 Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1980 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 Beauty Is the Beast Ann Hill

Beuf,2016-11-11 Americans spend more than five billion dollars a year on cosmetics In such a culture to be unattractive is to be at a disadvantage to have a physical abnormality that impairs one's appearance is to be stigmatized and rejected Destructive to adults this rejection can be devastating to children In Beauty is the Beast Ann Hill Beuf examines the stigmatization of children who deviate from American standards of acceptable physical appearance Children impaired by birth defects dermatological disorders excessive obesity and similar disorders are frequently regarded as inferior and often repulsive and they suffer rejection by strangers peers the professionals who are supposed to help them and their own families Using theory and methodology from sociology anthropology and psychology as well as her own extensive interviews with children and their caretakers Beuf analyzes both the effects of this stigmatization on children and the strategies they use to cope with it Beauty is the Beast will interest parents and professionals who work with appearance impaired children as well as scholars and graduate students in the fields of nursing sociology social work and psychology In the Shadow of Illness Myra Bluebond-Langner, 2020-06-30 A revealing account of how families adapt to living with a chronically ill child What is it like to live with a child who has a chronic life threatening disease What impact does the illness have on well siblings in the family Myra Bluebond Langner suggests that understanding the impact of the illness lies not in identifying deficiencies in the lives of those affected but in appreciating how family members carry on with their lives in the face of the disease s intrusion The Private Worlds of Dying Children Bluebond Langner s previous book now considered a classic in the field explored the world of terminally ill children In her new book she turns her attention to the lives of those who live in the shadow of chronic illness the parents and well siblings of children who have cystic fibrosis Through a series of narrative portraits she draws us into the daily lives of nine families of children at different points in the natural history of the illness from diagnosis through the terminal phase In these portraits as family members talk about their experiences in their own words we see how parents well siblings and the ill children themselves struggle in different ways to contain the intrusion of the disease into their lives Bluebond Langner looks at how parents adjust their priorities and their idea of what constitutes a normal life how they try to balance the needs of other family members while caring for the ill child and how they see the future This context helps us understand how well siblings view the illness and how they relate to their ill sibling and parents Since the issues raised are not unique to cystic fibrosis but are common to other chronic and life threatening illnesses this book will be of interest to all who study care for or live with the seriously ill National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1989 Handbook of Crisis Counseling, Intervention, and Prevention in the Schools Jonathan H.
