The Art of Cooking in Black Mountain American Business Women's Association. Black Mountain Chapter,19?? Unpackaging Art of the 1980s Alison Pearlman,2003-06-15 American art of the 1980s is as misunderstood as it is notorious Critics of the time feared that market hype and self promotion threatened the integrity of art They lashed out at contemporary art questioning the validity of particular media and methods and dividing the art into opposing camps While controversies have since subsided critics still view art of the 1980s as a stylistic battlefield Alison Pearlman rejects this picture which is truer of the period s criticism than of its art Pearlman reassesses the works and careers of six artists who became critics biggest targets In each of three chapters she pairs two artists the critics viewed as emblematic of a given trend Julian Schnabel and David Salle in association with Neo Expressionism Jean Michel Basquiat and Keith Haring vis vis Graffiti Art and Peter Halley and Jeff Koons in relation to Simulationism Pearlman shows how all these artists shared important but unrecognized influences and approaches a crucial and overwhelming inheritance of 1960s and 1970s Conceptualism a Warholian understanding of public identity and a deliberate and nuanced use of past styles and media Through in depth discussions of works from Haring s body paintings of Grace Jones to Schnabel s movie Basquiat Pearlman demonstrates how these artists interests exemplified a broader generational shift unrecognized by critics She sees this shift as starting not in the 1980s but in the mid 1970s when key developments in artistic style art world structures and consumer culture converged to radically alter the course of American art Unpackaging Art of the 1980s offers an innovative approach to one of the most significant yet least understood episodes in twentieth century art

Fretwell excavates the nineteenth century science of psychophysics and its theorizations of sensation to examine the cultural and aesthetic landscape of feeling in nineteenth century America Fretwell demonstrates how psychophysics a scientific movement originating in Germany and dedicated to the empirical study of sensory experience shifted the understandings of feeling from the epistemology of sentiment to the phenomenological terrain of lived experience Through analyses of medical case studies spirit photographs perfumes music theory recipes and the work of canonical figures ranging from Kate Chopin and Pauline Hopkins to James Weldon Johnson and Emily Dickinson Fretwell outlines how the five senses became important elements in the biopolitical work of constructing human difference along the lines of race gender and ability In its entanglement with social difference psychophysics contributed to the racialization of aesthetics while sketching out possibilities for alternate modes of being over and against the figure of the bourgeois liberal individual Although psychophysics has largely been forgotten Fretwell demonstrates that its importance to shaping social order through scientific notions of sensation is central to contemporary theories of new materialism posthumanism aesthetics and affect theory
