Black Coal/White Cotton Harold Tondera, 2003-02-01 Black Coal White Cotton is a product of the infinite humanity of family Stephan's successes as a father hard worker and human are proven and strengthened through the lives and successes of his children Running through an array of emotions amusing tales and intense drama the reader is drawn into a familiar world that reminds them of their own roots Waterfront Workers of New Orleans Eric Arnesen, 1994 During the nineteenth century American and foreign travelers often found New Orleans a delightful exotic stop on their journeys few failed to marvel at the riverfront the center of the city's economic activity But absent from the tourism industry's historical recollection is any reference to the immigrants or black migrants and their children who constituted the army of laborers along the riverfront and provided the essential human power to keep the cotton sugar and other goods flowing In examining one diverse group of workers the 10 000 to 15 000 cotton screwmen longshoremen cotton and round freight teamsters cotton yardmen railroad freight handlers and Mississippi River roustabouts this book focuses primarily on the workplace and the labor movement that emerged along the waterfront From the preface Waterfront Workers Calvin Winslow, 1998 Few work settings can compete with the waterfront for a long rich history of multi ethnic and multiracial interaction Here five scholars focus on the complex relationships involved in this intersection of race class and ethnicity Opens up some of the most significant questions in American labor and social history including the struggle for control at the workplace and even more important the relationship between black and white workers and among various ethnic groups on the docks David Brundage author of The Making of Western Labor Radicalism Denver's Organized Workers 1878 1905 A volume in the series The Working Class in American History edited by David Brody Alice Kessler Harris David Montgomery and Sean Wilentz Translations on Communist China's Trade, Finance, Transportation and Communications United States.
