Although readers of detective fiction ordinarily expect to learn the mystery s solution at the end there is another kind of detective story the history of which encompasses writers as diverse as Poe Borges Robbe Grillet Auster and Stephen King that ends with a question rather than an answer The detective not only fails to solve the crime but also confronts insoluble mysteries of interpretation and identity As the contributors to Detecting Texts contend such stories belong to a distinct genre the metaphysical detective story in which the detective hero s inability to interpret the mystery inevitably casts doubt on the reader s similar attempt to make sense of the text and the world Detecting Texts includes an introduction by the editors that defines the metaphysical detective story and traces its history from Poe s classic tales to today s postmodernist experiments contemporary aesthetic and literary theory to explore Nathaniel Hawthorne's narrative technique and his unique vision of the world. Dolis studies Hawthorne's anti-technological and essentially Romantic view of the external world and examines the recurring phenomena of lighting, motion, aspectivity, fragmentation, and imagination as they relate to his descriptive techniques. Dolis sets the world of Hawthorne's work over and against the aesthetic and philosophical development of the world understood as a view from its inception in the camera obscura and perspective in general to its 19th-century articulation in photography. In light of this general technology of the image and drawing upon a wide range of contemporary critical theories, Dolis begins his study of Hawthorne at the level of description where the world of the work first arises in the reader's consciousness. Dolis shows how the work of Heidegger, Merleau-Ponty, Freud, Lacan, and Derrida can provide fresh insights into the sophisticated style of Hawthorne's perception of and system for representing reality. Cultural Memory and the Construction of Identity Dan Ben-Amos, Liliane Weissberg, 1999. Cultural memory and the Construction of Identity brings together scholars of folklore, literature, history, and communication to explore the dynamics of cultural memory in a variety of contexts. Memory is a powerful tool that can transform a piece of earth into a homeland and common objects into symbols. The authors of this volume show how memory is shaped and how it operates in uniting society and creating images that attain the value of truth even if they deviate from fact.

Melville's Intervisionary Network John Haydock, 2016-10-18 The romances of Herman Melville author of Moby Dick and Billy Budd Sailor are usually examined from some setting almost exclusively American European or other planetary contexts are subordinated to local considerations But while this isolated approach plays well in an arena constructed on American exclusiveness it does not express the reality of the literary processes swirling around Melville in the middle of the nineteenth century A series of expanding literary and technological networks was active that made his writing part of a global complex Honor de Balzac popular French writer and creator of realism in the novel was also in the web of these same networks both preceding and at the height of Melville s creativity Because they engaged in similar intentions there developed an almost inevitable attraction that brought their works together Until recently however Balzac has not been recognized as a significant influence on Melville during his most creative period Over the last decade scholars began to explore literary networks by new methodologies and the criticism developed out of these strategies pertains usually to modernist postcolonial contemporary situations Remarkably however the intertextuality of Melville with Balzac is quite exactly a casebook study in transcultural comparativism Looking at Melville s innovative environment reveals meaningful results where the networks take on significant roles equivalent to what have been traditionally classed as genetic contacts Intervisionary Network explores a range of these connections and reveals that Melville was dependent on Balzac and his universal vision in much of his prose writing Mosses from an Old Manse and Other Stories Nathaniel Hawthorne, 2017-07-08 First published in 1846 in the present form famous English story writer Nathaniel Hawthorne's book Mosses from an Old Manse and Other Stories is a collection of fictional short stories. The collection includes several previously published short stories and was named in honor of The Old Manse where Hawthorne and his wife lived for the first three years of their marriage. The first edition was published in 1846. Hawthorne seems to have been paid 75 for the publication. Many of the tales collected in Mosses from an Old Manse are allegories and typical of Hawthorne's focus on the negative side of human nature. Hawthorne's friend Herman Melville noted this aspect in his review Hawthorne and His Mosses. This black conceit pervades him through and through. You may be witched by his sunlight transported by the bright gildings in the skies he builds over you but there is the blackness of darkness beyond and even his bright gildings but fringe and play upon the edges of thunder clouds.

Nathaniel Hawthorne Hourly History, 2021-05-24 Nathaniel Hawthorne is one of America's most influential writers and also one of the most complex. He was the essential New Englander, a believer in hard work and simple living, and his personality and writing were tremendously influenced by his Puritan ancestry and the Salem Witch Trials. He obsessed over sin and redemption his entire life. Hawthorne's unequivocal belief in the dark side of humanity proved to be one of the greatest assets of his writing. His obsession with mankind's downfall and its basic imperfections flows throughout every page of his novels. Evil fascinated him and he spent his life pondering how to overcome what he considered man's essential sinful nature. This produced some of the most dramatic literature by any American writer.
