Van Gogh, Arles, Murder Maurice Beale, 2010-02-01 Beginning with his arrival in Arles in March 1888 a combination of factual and fictitious events relating to Vincent Van Gogh are revealed while the Dutchman goes about creating timeless works of art A number of drawings and paintings of previously unknown locals are finally afforded names and backgrounds Prominent amongst these is a portrait of a young girl to whom the artist is especially attracted When she is found murdered suspicion falls on Van Gogh Harassed by both a tireless police inspector and a majority of the citizens of Arles the painter descends into the madness and despair culminating in his slicing off part of an ear while remaining sufficiently lucid to identify and paint the man he suspects of the crime Circumstances and characters pertaining to the murder define aspects of Van Gogh's personality as well as portraying a way of life in nineteenth century France remarkably similar to present day problems in the USA

Pathways to a New Environmental Ethic Steven E. Alford, 2024-07-25 We live under the threat of humanity's self-inflicted extinction While technological approaches to climate mitigation are admirable our ecological crisis results ultimately from an inherited unexamined concept of selfhood and a misconceived view of nature The received idea that our self exists inside our skull engenders an assumption that nature is out there with devastating results This book explores three new ways of thinking about the interrelation of ourselves and nature Merleau-Ponty's notion of embodiment the connection between enactivism and affordances and object-oriented ontology These approaches to selfhood reorder our moral obligations What are our responsibilities to ourselves our children and nature itself An embodied ethic can transcend cultural biases and offer a new way of confronting climate change To meet environmental challenges we need to change our minds about our minds
