Overstreet,2015-06-14 How has technology changed the art and science of nursing practice Many facets of nursing practice have stayed constant over the years such as the way we advocate for our patients and the art of caring for our patients However nursing practice has evolved over the years especially in the bedside delivery of state of the art nursing care

Technology at the bedside has forced nurse educators to change the ways in which we always have taught nursing students. Technology has also begun to change the methods used in the actual bedside nursing care. In this issue you will hear from some of the nursing experts in areas of nursing care that has changed in either the delivery of care or method of assessing care of the patient. Nursing experts will describe some of the historical changes and intrigue you in the changes expected to come to the bedside. Why is this issue important? First we gain insight from a review of where we have been and nurses tend to reminisce on our past as well as romance our historical roots. Second, technology is ever changing and it is good practice to keep abreast of what is happening in other areas of nursing so that we can apply others' successes in our own specific areas of nursing. Third, informatics in nursing is a growing field and nursing must embrace technology and learn to adapt various methods of delivery so that we can appropriately care for and advocate for our patients. With the changes in our national healthcare system we must encourage nurses to try out new methods of delivery as well as encourage their ideas of how nursing can change. The articles in this issue reflect these changes.

This issue addresses these matters with articles ranging from intravenous smart pumps to digital technology to promote family engagement to technology to reduce pressure injuries and many more. Contains 13 relevant practice oriented topics including the impact of technology on critical care nurses, the value of a nurse engineer team to evaluate technology for patient care, understanding nurse burnout in the context of alarm fatigue, ECMO human factors considerations for intensive care patients, AI/ML applications in the ICU, and more. Provides in depth clinical reviews on human factors and technology in the ICU offering actionable insights for clinical practice. Presents the latest information on this timely focused topic under the leadership of experienced editors in the field. Authors synthesize and distill the latest research and practice guidelines to create clinically significant topic based reviews.

Medical Technology Assessment Directory Institute of Medicine, Council on Health Care Technology, 1988-02-01. For the first time a single reference identifies medical technology assessment programs. A valuable guide to the field, this directory contains more than 60 profiles of programs that conduct and report on medical technology assessments. Each profile includes a listing of report citations for that program and all the reports are indexed under major subject headings. Also included is a cross listing of technology assessment report citations arranged by type of technology, headings, brief descriptions of approximately 70 information sources of potential interest to technology assessors, and addresses and descriptions of 70 organizations with memberships, activities, publications, and other functions relevant to the medical technology assessment community.
