Blueprint For Action On Breastfeeding:

Breastfeeding United States. Department of Health and Human Services. Office on Women's Health, 2000

Breastfeeding Sarah W. Ying, 2005 The rate of breastfeeding in the United States has risen and fallen over time as a result of changing lifestyles and the availability of substitutes for human milk However since the 1970s the rates of breastfeeding initiation and duration have increased in part due to the increasing medical evidence of the significant health benefits both to mothers and children The federal government's Health Objectives for 2010 are for 75% of mothers to initiate breastfeeding at the time of birth and for 50% to continue breastfeeding until their infants reach 6 months of age Current rates are about 69.5% at the time of hospital discharge and 32.5% at 6 months of age The health benefits to the infant include the high nutritional quality of human milk and a decrease in various infectious and other diseases of infancy that are reduced by the anti microbial anti inflammatory and immunological stimulating agents present Mothers seem to benefit with a more rapid return to the pre pregnancy state of their bodies improved glucose and lipid metabolism delayed ovulation and the possible reduction of certain cancers This new book examines the impact on health employment and society laws and government support of this important health action Blueprint for Action on Breastfeeding Suzanne G. Haynes, 2001-04-01

Breastfeeding is one of the most important contributors to infant and maternal health and it also contributes economic benefits to the family health care system and workplace The Surgeon General asked the Office on Women's Health to draw up this Blueprint for Action on Breastfeeding which establishes a comprehensive breastfeeding policy for the nation It introduces an action plan for breastfeeding based on education training awareness support and research The plan includes key recommendations that were refined by the members and reviewers of the Subcommittee on Breastfeeding during their deliberations of science based findings Breastfeeding and Human Lactation Karen Wambach, Becky whether in the inpatient maternity NICU or ambulatory care Lactation: A Foundational Strategy for Health Promotion Suzanne Hetzel Campbell, 2021-01-25 Healthcare professionals including lactation consultants and nurses have the unique challenge of educating the community and their patients on healthy breastfeeding and the benefits of lactation. However, breastfeeding is not efficiently represented in texts specific to health promotion. With her 30 years experience educating undergraduate and graduate nursing students and interprofessional healthcare providers on maternal infant health and lactation, Suzanne Hetzel Campbell is breaking that tradition. Lactation: A Foundational Strategy for Health Promotion uses evidence based research and a person centered care framework to empower healthcare practitioners to advocate for and support families in their breastfeeding ventures Breastfeeding Janet Dalzell, Elizabeth Rogerson, 2018-10-08 In recent decades, global healthcare professionals and organisations have formed a wide evidence based consensus that breastfeeding is usually the best option for both mother and baby. However, women and professionals alike often face a sea of shifting attitudes and values and complex social, cultural, political and economic factors that may influence women's feeding decisions. This book examines the global evidence and the factors that affect women's decisions around initiating breastfeeding and maintaining it through the first year of their children's lives. It outlines potential areas for development and policy change at practitioner and strategic levels and shows how health professionals can effectively communicate and provide information to help women make unpressured but informed decisions. Breastfeeding: Contemporary Issues in Practice and Policy is essential reading for healthcare professionals, policy movers and shapers and all those with an interest in breastfeeding who wish to influence the development of related policies, practices and healthcare services Breastfeeding Management for the Clinician: Using the Evidence Marsha Walker, 2021-12-13 Breastfeeding Management for the Clinician: Using the Evidence is the perfect tool for busy clinicians who need a quick, accurate and current reference. It provides the essentials of breastfeeding management without the lengthy, overly detailed explanations found in other large texts. Now in an updated and modernized fifth edition, this unique resource features new sections on LGBTQ families, milk sharing, exclusive pumping, new breastfeeding products, breastfeeding in emergencies, additional feeding care plans and access to downloadable patient care plans and helpful handouts that can be easily shared with patients. Breastfeeding Management for the Clinician: Using the Evidence Fifth Edition includes literature reviews while covering incidence, etiology, risk factors, prevention, prognosis and implications, interventions, expected outcomes, care plans and clinical algorithms Dioxins and Dioxin-like Compounds in the Food Supply Institute of Medicine, Food and Nutrition Board, Committee on the Implications of Dioxin in the Food Supply, 2003-12-21 Dioxin and dioxin-like compounds or DLCs are found throughout the environment in soil, water and air. People are exposed to these unintentional environmental contaminants primarily through the food supply, although at low levels, particularly by eating animal fat in meat, dairy products and fish. While the amount of DLCs in the environment has declined since the late 1970s, the public continues to be concerned about the safety of the food supply and the potential adverse health effects of DLC exposure especially in groups such as developing fetuses and infants who are more sensitive to the toxic effects of these compounds Dioxins and Dioxin like Compounds in the Food Supply Strategies to Decrease Exposure recommends policy options to reduce exposure to these contaminants while considering how implementing these options could both reduce health risks and affect nutrition particularly in sensitive and highly exposed groups if dietary changes are suggested
