Chambers, 2011-08-16 What does it mean to be a writer of Muslim heritage in the UK today Is there such a thing as Muslim fiction In a collection of revealing new interviews Claire Chambers talks to writers including Tariq Ali Ahdaf Soueif Hanif Kureishi and Abdulrazak Gurnah to discuss the impact that their Muslim heritage has had on their writing and to argue that this body of writing is some of the most important and politically engaged fiction of recent years From literary techniques and influences to the political and cultural debates that matter to Muslims in Britain and beyond such as the hijab the war on terror and the Rushdie affair these thirteen interviews challenge the idea of a monolithic voice for Islam in Britain Instead together they paint a picture of the diversity of voices creating British Muslim fictions which ultimately enriches the cultural social and political landscape of contemporary Britain Lift Up Your Heads John A. Barrier, 2017-06-27 This book is a meditation on Paul's letter to the church in Galatia with the purpose of reclaiming Paul for those of faith who have grown tired of thinking that Christians are the people who draw lines make distinctions and police religious borders This book is an attempt to reclaim the vision of Paul that is beyond Jew and Gentile slave and free male and female the new creation Ultimately the vision of Paul was not Paul's vision but God's vision of the cosmos As readers reclaim this vision of a new creation they begin to reclaim God's new creation experienced in our lives and within the world around us God as the grand creator of the cosmos is attempting to inject the same creative process into the cosmos through humans Rather than simply seeing humans as the destroyers of the cosmos Barrier invites us to consider this beautiful thought The earth could be renewed daily by humanity Sita's Daughters Leigh Minturn, 1993 Sita's Daughters vividly recounts the dramatic changes in role and status experienced by Rajput caste women in the Indian village Khalapur between 1955 and 1975 In the 20 years between her now classic original field study and her follow up with the same families Leigh Minturn witnessed a significant decline in the women's observance of a complex system of customs collectively called purdah which includes the wearing of veils silence in the presence of senior men and women the adoption of subservient postures when speaking to men and the separation of husbands and wives Her interviews with mothers and daughters in law reveal how changes in purdah customs and religious traditions have allowed them increased access to education and health facilities control of finances and autonomy inside and mobility outside of their husbands households This work is unprecedented in its depth scope and exposition of the intimate details of the lives of Indian women Minturn's return to her original subjects allowed her to observe firsthand the changes that had transpired during the interim resulting in the only Indian village field study to span two generations Having won the trust and confidence of her subjects the author poignantly conveys their individuality along with their stories of heroism loyalty infidelity rape incest theft and even murder With even handedness and detailed scholarship Minturn makes use of methods such as systematic sampling and structured interviewing that are effective in capturing the richness of Indian village life though they are uncommon in anthropological studies The wide range of issues addressed here will be of interest to students and researchers in women's studies South Asian studies anthropology
