Creating Cyber Libraries Kathleen W. Craver, 2002-05-30 As prices of traditional library materials increase and space to house them shrinks savvy school library media specialists are creating cyber libraries or school libraries on the Internet These libraries offer students and their parents 24 hour access and are invaluable for providing up to date information in a way traditional materials cannot This guide outlines the steps library media specialists can take to create a cyber library provide content and policies for use and maintain it for maximum efficiency Craver justifies the need for cyber libraries in the 21st century and how they can help librarians to meet the standards in Information Power 1998 She explains the different types of cyber libraries available along with their advantages and disadvantages She discusses how to construct them using portals or by acquiring fee based cyber libraries and what policies should be in place to protect both the school and its students Also included are instructions for establishing remote access to subscription databases creating cyber reading rooms and providing instructional services to student users Once a cyber library is created it must be maintained and evaluated to keep it useful and current and this book provides guidelines to do so Finally there is a chapter on promoting the cyber library so the school community is aware of its features and participates in its growth process No school library should be without this volume Guide to the

Presidency: Part V. The White House and the executive branch Michael Nelson,2002 Cyber Dictionary David Morse,1996 For the first time a dynamically designed book puts it all together for tens of millions of Net surfers and novice Netters Organized in an easy to use A Z format and written in concise clear language this reader friendly reference is filled with fascinating min essays over 900 explicit definitions and time saving tips certain to make the Net accessible exciting and enlightening Crime and Deviance in Cyberspace DavidS. Wall,2017-07-05 This volume presents the reader with an interesting and at times provocative selection of contemporary thinking about cybercrimes and their regulation The contributions cover the years 2002 2007 during which period internet service delivery speeds increased a thousand fold from 56kb to 56mb per second When combined with advances in networked technology these faster internet speeds not only made new digital environments more easily accessible but they also helped give birth to a completely new generation of purely internet related cybercrimes ranging from spamming phishing and other automated frauds to automated crimes against the integrity of the systems and their content In order to understand these developments the volume introduces new cybercrime viewpoints and issues but also a critical edge supported by some of the new research that is beginning to challenge and surpass the hitherto journalistically driven news stories that were once the sole source of information about cybercrimes
