Art As Spectacle:

Art as Spectacle Naomi Ritter, 1989 Why do images of entertainers abound in European literature and art since Romanticism From Baudelaire to Picasso from Daumier to Fellini mimes clowns aerialists and jesters recur in major works by continental artists In Art as Spectacle Naomi Ritter investigates this phenomenon and offers explanations that transcend the array of works discussed Her analysis implies much about the triangle of creator work and audience that inevitably controls art Although a broadly comparative study underlies Art as Spectacle the book focuses mainly on examples from Germany and France Three areas of argument identification primitivism and transcendence account for the performer's ubiquity in the arts of the last two centuries Ritter shows that writers painters choreographers and filmmakers have persistently identified with the entertainer whose roots lie in primitive ritual a source of all art Accordingly the artist also sees the player as morally or spiritually elevated With three chapters on literature a chapter comparing poetry to painting and a chapter each on dance the visual arts and film Art as Spectacle offers unprecedented scope on a compelling topic in comparative studies By integrating such varied material into an original commentary on the image of the entertainers this book provides an invaluable resource for all the disciplines it touches

The Art of Spectacle Alanna Conner, 2014 Human nature draws us towards the areas of highest contrast We see this realized in the way that compositions are formed and understood our eye is immediately drawn to the highest contrast the most obvious and clearly expressed or seen But in life these areas of high contrast can act more as distraction than enriching stimuli more substance can be taken in through subtle communication and differences It is in the subtlety of art the attributes not immediately recognized that we see feel the greatest depth Spectacle architecture suffers from the same desire to be seen and to communicate with absolute clarity The spectacle trend comes with many expenses many of these buildings suffer from reduced functionality excuses of expression becoming part of a person's identity or lending to an architect's star status a fading sense of novelty making the building the destination rather than the contents and their value commodifying or abusing the capitalist nature of the industry as well as showing a general lack of responsibility towards the community that houses the building These detrimental issues seem to be most harmful to the museum buildings that are being constructed A museum is an altruistic symbol of the culture and knowledge of a community Museums started with galleries of private owners who opened spaces in their home to show the art now the sharing of art has become even more public and most of the work viewed in museums is privately owned To see these altruistic symbols suffer from capitalism and the need for fame and notoriety is disheartening This thesis argues that the trend of spectacle architecture in museum design is affecting our impression of the museum and its influence on the community as well as the importance of the contents of these buildings The spectacle character is not an aid to the display and purpose of a museum and in many cases is a hindrance to the museum Through many explorations and subsequent discoveries the characteristics of this argument have been tested The initial search for an empirical answer to this question proved to be an irrational pursuit and so an adaptable solution was required Referencing other architectural programs and using those principles to the advantage of displaying art This thesis seeks architecture that adapts to the art it displays rather than forcing art to adapt to the architecture that holds it

Mediterranean Art and Education John Baldacchino, Raphael Vella, 2013-11-19 The Mediterranean is a multifaceted conglomeration of parts that cannot be assembled into a whole Its various histories characterised by imperial and nationalistic aspirations imbalances of power and economies political struggles diverse cultural religious and linguistic realities as well as the countless myths spawned by people over the ages all contribute to the world's fascination with this region and simultaneously make it difficult for anyone to speak sensibly about it without resorting to the plural form the

Mediterraneans So can we speak of a Mediterranean pedagogy of the arts The authors in this volume argue in different ways that the answer to this question cannot be carved out of a singular monolithic interpretation of the region Instead we need to look for provisional answers in the region s dynamic developments historic and contemporary exchanges of ideas and cultural codes and in the shifting nature of a sea that invites journeying inquisitive people to discover new routes The cover image La fen tre int rieur e is by the French photographer S bastien Cailleux and shows a multiple exposure portrait of a child and her drawing created during a workshop called Dessine moi la M diterran e organised by L cole d Art au Village Edaav at the Museum of Illumination Miniatures and Calligraphy at the Casbah in Algiers Constructed Situations Frances
