

The background is a watercolor illustration of a vast, layered landscape. In the foreground, there's a river or a wide, shallow stream flowing through a green, grassy field. The middle ground shows a series of rolling hills and valleys, with some areas appearing to be covered in low-lying vegetation or small trees. The background features a range of mountains with distinct horizontal layers, suggesting geological strata. The sky is a mix of light blue and white, with soft, wispy clouds. The overall style is soft and painterly, with visible brushstrokes and a gentle color palette.

Burren Country Paul Clements, 2011-05-14 For 20 years Paul Clements has been tapping into the Burren's hidden crevices drawn to its history mystery and peculiarities He writes absorbingly about the rocks hills and walls and the range of colours the animals he rubs shoulders with and about subjects which excite him such as the exotic wild flowers ancient ruins early morning birdsong and the smell of whiskey in historic pubs A hunter and gatherer of information and lore on the Burren the author ferrets out little known facts and weaves them together to create these carefully distilled essays Journal of Life Sciences, 1982 In the Tracks of the West Clare Railway Edmund Lenihan, 2008 Although trains are unlikely to ever again run between Ennis and Kilkee the legend of this little branch line of the southern railway system will live on as long as there are people who look back fondly on the past Anyone with even a superficial acquaintance with Clare will know what a wealth of varied scenery it contains together with abundant archaeological sites and historical remains spanning over 5 000 years of human habitation Not least of these are the earthworks of the West and South Clare Railways Eddie Lenihan believes that a time will come when parts of these lines will be preserved as national monuments but until that happens their destruction will continue For what was a railway is now a disjointed succession of pieces linking not just places but in a way two worlds one unhurried and traditional the other brash frenzied and modern In the Tracks of the West Clare Railway paints an evocative picture of a time when the railway breathed life into West Clare Journal of the Royal Historical and Archaeological Association of Ireland Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland, 1897 Index of archaeological papers published in 1891 under the direction of the Congress of Archaeological Societies in union with the Society of Antiquaries

The Initiation, Propagation, and Arrest of Joints and Other Fractures John W. Cosgrove, Terry Engelder, 2004 This volume is a state of the art look at our understanding of joint development in the crust. Answers are provided for such questions as the mechanisms by which joints are initiated the factors controlling the path they follow during the propagation process and the processes responsible for the arrest of joints. Many of the answers to these questions can be inferred from the geometry of joint surface morphology and joint patterns. Joints are a record of the orientation of stress at the time of propagation and as such they are also useful records of ancient stress fields regional and local. Because outcrop and subsurface views of joints are limited statistical techniques are required to characterize joints and joint sets. Finally joints are subject to post propagation stresses that further localize deformation and are the focus for the development of new structures.
