A Christian Anthropology

John Thein

A Christian Anthropology:

Retrieving the Human José Comblin, 1990 Man in Revolt Emil Brunner, 2002 In the struggle of ideas the most fundamental and far reaching is that of the nature of mankind What are we Why are we not at peace with ourselves or our neighbours How does our understanding of our nature lead to personal and social well being We have followed the false leads of Darwin Nietzsche Marx and Freud in trying to understand ourselves Despite other differences they all interpret man in relation to nature rejecting transcendent metaphysical or religious understanding of the human condition They do not solve the contradiction between what we are and what we ought to be Brunner sees the human contradiction as comprehensible only in terms of a God to whose word we must respond This is not communication by language it refers to the fundamental character of personal relations People are persons in so far as they can freely say to each other what they think and feel This communication is possible in so far as we recognise that God speaks to us and respond to Him Brunner sees responsibility as the key to personality The Biblical doctrine of man created in the image of God and capable of responding to God's Word is the key to recovering an effective sense of responsibility With profound penetration and power Brunner applies his thesis to such vexed questions as individuality and community character relations between man and woman relations between soul and body Man in Revolt explains our frustration and confusion about ourselves and why the Christian view of man of his place in nature and history is the truth which man both needs and seeks in the search for himself *Christian Anthropology. / With an Introduction by Chas. Christian Anthropology John Thein, 1892 A Christian Anthropology, 1974 The Whole Man Ronald Gregor Smith, 1969 Anthropology in Theological Perspective Wolfhart Pannenberg, 1985 In this comprehensive study a renowned theologian examines the anthropological disciplines human biology psychology cultural anthropology sociology and history for their religious implications The result is a theological anthropology that does not derive from dogma or prejudice but critically evaluates the findings of the disciplines Pannenberg begins with a consideration of human beings as part of nature moves on to focus on the human person and then considers the social world its culture history and institutions All the elements of this multi faceted study unite in the final chapter on the relation of human beings to their history Christian Anthropology Michele Saracino, 2015 Vatican II ushered in a new outlook on living as Catholic Christians in a global world This book is a student friendly textbook on what it means to be human in light of our changing world and church Each chapter will emphasize one particular aspect of human existence exegeting the relevant biblical texts classical and contemporary doctrines and challenges to living these teachings in the twenty first century The book is divided into thirteen chapters correlating with a typical length of a semester Course instructors can shape their syllabi around this structure perhaps dividing the week between lecture discussion and exercises the latter of which will be outlined at the end of each chapter This exploration of theological anthropology invites students from all levels including undergraduate seminary students and engaged believers into the conversation Man, the Image of God Joseph Fichtner, 1978-01-01 Theology and the Anthropology of Christian Life Joel Robbins, 2020 How can we understand the role of religion in human experience and social life This book argues that anthropology and theology can work together to answer this question Robbins provides clear accounts of contemporary anthropological theory and theological debates around issues such as atonement sin and the potentials and limits of human action The Christian Vision of Humanity John Randall Sachs, 1991 The incredible technical achievements of recent history may make us feel little less than gods but we also find much that cuts us down When we face our own limits and failures upon what or whom can we rely The biblical answer to questions about the ultimate nature and meaning of human life begins with the experience of Semitic slaves led out of Egyptian slavery beautifully recounted in Deuteronomy 26 5 11 The New Testament presents Jesus as the culmination of God's Old Testament promise Christian faith has a particular Vision of the world and of humanity founded upon the relationship between God and creation Its key elements are found in the inviolable dignity of every person the essential centrality of community and the significance of human action These are the main themes of a Christian anthropology developed in this book Anthropology and New Testament Theology Jason Maston, Chris Keith, 2018-02-22 This volume considers the

New Testament in the light of anthropological study in particular the current trend towards theological anthropology The book begins with three essays that survey the context in which the New Testament was written covering the Old Testament early Jewish writings and the literature of the Greco Roman world Chapters then explore the anthropological ideas found in the texts of the New Testament and in the thought of its writers notably that of Paul The volume concludes with pieces from Brian S Roser and Ephraim Radner who bring the whole exploration together by reflecting on the theological implications of the New Testament's anthropological ideas Taken together the chapters in this volume address the question that humans have been asking since at least the earliest days of recorded history what does it mean to be human The presence of this question in modern theology and its current prevalence in popular culture makes this volume both a timely and relevant interdisciplinary addition to the scholarly conversation around the New Testament

Christian Anthropology and Ethics James M. Childs, 1978

Christian Anthropology, Theological Anthropology J. Patout Burns, Joseph W. Trigg, Robin Darling Young, Jeffrey T. Wickes, George Kalantzis, 2023 The book gathers and translates texts from early Christianity that explore the diversity of theological approaches to the nature and ends of humanity Readers will gain a sense of how early Christians reflected on humanity and human nature in different theological movements and their legacies in late antiquity and the dawn of the Middle Ages

An Ecological Christian Anthropology Ernst M. Conradie, 2017-03-02 What is the place and vocation of human beings in the earth community This is the central question that this contribution towards a Christian ecological anthropology addresses In ecological theology this question is often answered by the affirmation that We are at home on earth This affirmation rightly responds to the widespread sense of alienation from nature to the anthropocentrism that pervades much of the Christian tradition and to concerns about the scope of environmental devastation This book challenges the affirmation that we are at home on earth examining natural suffering anxieties concerning human finitude and especially the pervasiveness of evil The book investigates contributions to ecological theology South African and African theology reformed theology and contemporary dialogues between theology and the sciences in search of a thoroughly ecological Christian anthropology

»What is Human?« Eve-Marie Becker, Jan Dietrich, Bo Kristian Holm, 2016-12-05 Already Scripture asks many questions regarding anthropological problems In the 20th century the scholarly field of anthropology has become a lot more complex heuristically methodically and hermeneutically Therefore modern research needs to answer arisen questions considering a wide range of disciplines Sociology Philosophy Ethics and also Empirical Research This volume is an interdisciplinary project within theology Contributions seek to not only reflect the state of the art in anthropological research from a theological point of view but also provide a theological interpretation of one virulent question What is a Human

A Journey to Freedom Franco Imoda, 2000 Can psychology and religion engage in constructive dialogue Has psychology a contribution to make in Christian formation These are some of the issues addressed in this volume marking 25 years of the Institute of Psychology of the

Gregorian University The twenty articles which make up the work offer essential insights into how psychology and religion can meet and interact constructively at the level of theory and of practice These insights are presented in the context of an overall Christian anthropology which continues to develop and to further refine its practical applications The contributions are divided into four sections theory and method dialogue between psychology and other disciplines applications in different cultures and concrete experiences of applying a psychologically informed Christian anthropology in the educational setting The balanced approach presented in this work makes it both a serious instrument of study and a valuable point of reference for the educator Its constant reference to a Christian conception of the person will help avoid short sighted pragmatism
