□□□□□□□□□□, 2001 Art Nouveau Paul Greenhalgh, Maki Tsuchida, Tōkyō-to Bijutsukan, Yomiuri Shinbunsha, Victoria and Albert Museum, 2001 Design, Vienna, 1890s to 1930s Joann Skrypzak, Barbara Copeland Buenger, 2003 Barbara Buenger traces the development of Viennese modernism from turn of the century Jugendstil as Art Nouveau was known in German speaking countries to early twentieth century Expressionism and interwar Art Deco This exhibition catalogue features 103 fine and decorative art works produced by the Vienna Secession and Wiener Werksttte movements between the 1890s and 1930s The fully illustrated catalog features textiles furniture ceramics paintings and prints books metalwork glass and a variety of other objects from a private midwestern collection Distributed for the Chazen Museum of Art University of Wisconsin Madison Art nouveau, 1890-1914, 2001 The Sociology of an Artistic Movement William Payne Eadie, 1989 This thesis attempts to present a controlled sociological examination of Art Nouveau in Glasgow from the eighteen nineties into the first decade of the twentieth century The phenomenon of Glasgow Art Nouveau its ideological groundings its socio cultural base and the nature of its artistic production provides a case study of avant gardism The main intention is to illustrate with historical exemplification to what extent Art Nouveau can be interpreted as a radical social critique underpinned by specific theoretical and ideological concerns I begin by examining the analytic means whereby satisfactory criteria are developed for the purpose of defining Art Nouveau as an artistic style the specific manifestations of this style in a variety of European countries and its transformation from organic symbolic to abstract geometric form language and b Art Nouveau as a distinctive cultural movement which was attempting to transform the public sphere in accordance with artistic principles The second chapter has a dual purpose firstly it examines the status of Art Nouveau as an avant garde movement and secondly it attempts to construct the basis for a specifically sociological theory of Art Nouveau by bringing together the arguments of certain social theorists who have made significant reference to the phenomenon Subsequently it is demonstrated that within the sphere of influence of the Glasgow School of Art continental avant garde trends at the end of the nineteenth century provided the frame of reference for the understanding of new artistic movements in Glasgow This leads to an analysis of Mackintosh's extant writings in order that a reconstruction of the essentials of Scottish Art Nouveau's distinctive ideology can be presented It is argued that Glasgow Art Nouveau had a coherent viewpoint in many respects deriving from the formulations of the Edinburgh sociologist and theorist Patrick Geddes As well as demonstrating the closeness of Mackintosh's theorising to that of certain Viennese Art Nouveau exponents Wagner Hoffmann with whom he had contact it is shown to what extent Scottish Art Nouveau was attempting to transcend the traditional distinction between the utilitarian and the artistic and address the issue of a social environment transformed in accordance with modern social needs The remainder of the thesis substantively examines crucially related aspects of the Glasgow cultural context Firstly it focusses upon the Art School as institutional context within which Art Nouveau emerges and demonstrates the relevance of the implementation of an experimental approach to art teaching there Secondly it examines the issue of the actual and potential production of goods manifesting the new form language Thirdly the nature of the reception given to the new form language is investigated this involves an analysis of relevant reportage in Glasgow The reasons for the failure of the movement to gain ground in Glasgow are shown to be connected with a number of complex factors ranging from moral outrage at its decadence to the absence of the kind of technical expertise capable of consolidating its innovations for a mass society
