The Aging Family Terry Hargrave, Suzanne Midori Hanna, 2013-06-17 As the population of the United States ages and the lifespan increases so does the number of living generations The mental health care delivery system therefore faces new challenges The United States is heading into the 21st century with multigenerational families now commonplace with up to four or five generations co existing at the same time And each generation is forced to deal with its own developmental transitions as well as complex cross generational issues When a therapist steps into this situation his or her role has to take on board the complexity of the whole family system This text highlights the issues that hold families together and often tear them apart It offers core perspectives that seek to make the work of intervention easier and more effective for the clinician Whether the therapist is called upon to intervene on behalf of elder members to deal with issues such as depression or to step in when younger members are trying to determine how best to provide eldercare the perspectives presented in The Aging Family aim to enrich the strategies used

Handbook of Clinical Behavior Therapy with the Elderly Client Patricia A. Wisocki, 2013-11-21 Although we speak of the elderly as if there were one body of people with common characteristics older adults are more heterogeneous than any other population People over the age of 65 are also the fastest growing segment of the population in the United States currently numbering 25 million The majority of older adults reside in their communities a small fraction of them are cared for in institutions Most may expect to experience some kind of physical impairment Approximately a quarter of the population may expect to suffer a mental health impairment While traditional therapies have not been especially effective for older adults behavior therapy has shown exceptional promise as a treatment modality This book presents a comprehensive explication of the relatively new field of behavioral gerontology It was written for the clinician interested in the interaction of medical environmental and psychological variables and their effects on treatment of elderly clients and for the researcher who will be looking to extend knowledge about interventions with this population It will be useful for the graduate student in clinical psychology as well as the experienced clinician who will want to include the elderly in his or her therapeutic population

Hooyman, Judith Gonyea, 1995-08-29 Today women find themselves playing an ever increasing role in caring for older family members who are frail developmentally disabled or suffering from serious mental illness While this role of women as caregivers has been documented the actual impact on the lives of women has remained largely unstudied In this volume the authors examine caregiving as a central feminist issue looking at its impact on women socially personally and economically The authors review how changing family structures the changing economy and workforce and the changing health care demands of needy adults have impacted on women s lives They critique existing public and private policies demonstrating a need for fundamental structural changes in social institutions and attitudes to improve the lives of women Finally they propose a social model of care that is oriented toward gender justice recognition of the work of caring and its impact upon women socially personally and economically For students scholars and practitioners in the field of gerontology gender studies and social work this book is a must Social Integration in the Second Half of Life Karl Pillemer,Phyllis Moen,Elaine Wethington,Nina Glasgow,2003-05-01 Social scientists use the term social integration to refer to individuals connections with others in their environments The concept and its consequences have been the subject of considerable study Many researchers have asserted that meaningful and enduring ties to other persons serve as a buffer against stress and thereby promote physical and mental health The results are especially pronounced for older persons Social Integration in the Second Half of Life presents integrative reviews of theory and research on this topic The editors and contributors all currently or previously affiliated with the Cornell Gerontology Research Institute also present new empirical findings of research done at their center The first section of the book discusses basic theory and principles of social integration in later life and its implications for health The second largest section examines specific issues retirement driving family support housing neighbors The third section addresses interventions to promote social integration transportation volunteering and peer support for dementia caregivers Throughout the authors focus on the diverging influences of social integration and its converse social isolation in later life Widow to Widow Phyllis R. Haigler,Kathryn B. Mims,Jack A. Nottingham,1998 Caring for persons with chronic illnesses or disabilities is a rewarding endeavor but it often places extreme demands on those providing care Caregivers need both education and support to understand their caregiving roles and to cope with the difficult situations they face All too often there is a chasm between professionals who are part of the formal caregiving system and family members friends and neighbors who provide daily care The Caring for You Caring for Me education and support program is a valuable tool for use in providing caregivers with education and support The program is designed to bring formal professional and informal lay family caregivers together to gain a better understanding of each other's perspectives on what it means to be a caregiver with the hope that in the process both will learn to do it better. The program is based on caregiving research and the expertise of frontline caregivers. The Leader's Guide contains everything needed to conduct a ten-hour education and support program for caregivers: informational content layouts for overhead transparencies and suggested group activities. The companion Participant's Manual supports the presentation providing a workbook for class activities, a suggested reading list, and a compendium of national sources of help for caregivers. Caring for You, Caring for Me was developed by the Rosalynn Carter Institute under the guidance of the West Central Georgia Caregivers Network CARE-NET. The Rosalynn Carter Institute was established in 1987. Its mission is to understand the process of caregiving and discover new ways to benefit both formal and informal caregivers. The Institute supports the premise that caregivers and care receivers can be served most effectively through the collaborative efforts of formal and informal caregivers, academicians, public and private services, and organizations representing caregivers and recipients of care. Aging, 1996. Encyclopedia of Social Work, 1965.
