A Bibliography of the Land Mammals of Southeast Asia, 1699-1969 Gwilym S. Jones, Diana B. Jones, 1976 This bibliography was compiled in order to provide zoologists medical and paramedical investigators and others with a single source of references for the land mammals of Southeast Asia The task was originally undertaken in conjunction with an investigation of mammal borne anthroponoses in Southeast Asia The countries primarily covered by this work are Burma Thailand Laos Cambodia North and South Vietnam the Republic of the Philippines Indonesia Malaysia and Hainan Island Major works concerning mammals of India and southern China have also been included because of close faunal relationships and because authors who worked in India and what is now Bangladesh have frequently included Burma as a part of their study area Papers presenting the results of laboratory experiments with captive animals are not included although papers presenting physiological anatomical and parasitological data applicable to the natural state of the species are included
