

Positioning is the Heart of Nonprofit Marketing

Positioning is at the heart of nonprofit marketing. As described by Philip Kotler, marketer extraordinaire, positioning designs an organization's image and value offer so that its customers appreciate what the organization stands for in relationship to its competitors.

Marketing "pulls" a nonprofit's audiences from where they are to create a desired action. Communications "pushes" out messages. Positioning is the linchpin between the two.

Positioning flows from a nonprofit's mission. Positioning guides an organization into the future and works to build its reputation with its key audiences.

Positioning is strategic. Can you think of anything more valuable than your nonprofit's reputation? And, in this changing landscape where nonprofits must be nimble and quick, positioning takes on even more importance in competition to be loved "or be out."

A positioning statement is a tight, focused description of the core target audience to whom a nonprofit is directed, and it provides a compelling picture of how the organization wants its targeted audiences to view them. A well-constructed positioning statement brings focus and clarity to the development of the marketing strategy and tactics.

How does the positioning statement effect a nonprofit's marketing strategy? According to Branded, an online marketing resource, every decision that is made regarding the nonprofit is judged by how well it supports its positioning statement.

Branded describes the four elements or components of a positioning statement. I have qualified these for nonprofits:

1. Target Audience – Knowing your target audience is fundamental to an organization's success.
2. Frame of Reference – the marketing niche in which a nonprofit competes.
3. Benefit/Point of Difference – the most compelling and motivating benefit that an organization owns in the hearts and minds of its target audience relative to the competition.
4. Reason to Believe – the most convincing proof that the brand delivers what it promises.

Art Of Strategic Positioning For Nonprofits:

Nonprofit Strategic Positioning Thomas A. McLaughlin, 2006-04-20 Nonprofit Strategic Positioning Decide Where to Be Plan What to Do is the first nonprofit oriented book to describe strategic positioning as an alternative to traditional strategic planning Even in the nonprofit sector strategic planning is becoming discredited as a formulaic go nowhere exercise This book will take the reader on a stimulating journey through nonprofit strategy development and implementation The book is timely because the nonprofit sector has reached a turning point where the need to be more business like is undeniable and the continuing retreat of the public sector has left even wider gaps in services that nonprofits will be asked to fill Nonprofit Strategic Positioning Decide Where to Be Plan What to Do offers a fresh new way for nonprofits to meet the challenges of the 21st century Integrating Mission and Strategy for Nonprofit Organizations James A. Phills

Jr., 2005-07-21 This volume helps the leaders of nonprofit organizations apply the principles of general management to the special challenges they face particularly in the areas of mission strategy and execution In addition to helping nonprofit leaders think through important decisions and make concrete choices the book also provides a shared language and a discipline that can serve as the basis for more productive discussions between the individuals who lead nonprofits the business executives who serve on their boards and the philanthropists who support their organizations and programs
