New media art conservation Lino García Morales, 2022-05-23 New media art produced at the intersection of art science and technology makes up the majority of a Museum of Contemporary Art s collections However technological obsolescence and technical fragility of the artworks make their conservation restoration an ongoing challenge A new theoretical approach to permanence through change addresses this problem and offers alternatives and solutions from the production to recreation of new media art

Innovative Technology in Art Conservation W. (Bill) Wei, 2023-12-22 Innovative Technology in Art Conservation provides one of the first ever critical assessments of innovation in conservation science and questions what role it should play in conservation and conservation ethics Written in language understandable for the non technical reader the book begins with a brief history of so called science based conservation which is based on chemistry physics and engineering and examines how it influences conservation ethics and conservation decisions It considers the concepts of originality and original appearance and how people see and perceive objects looking in particular at the results of the relatively new technology of eye tracking Wei then moves on to critically examine advanced technologies such as colour modelling hyperspectral imaging texture mapping virtual retouching and digital reproductions and considers what they offer for determining original appearance of artworks and other cultural heritage objects The book concludes with some reflections on the future of conservation and science based conservation calling for more thoughtful consideration of what it is that conservation scientists are offering and why and for whom it is being offered Innovative Technology in Art Conservation is essential reading for academics and students working in conservation and conservation science The book will also be of interest to the international community of conservators and cultural heritage professionals who must make decisions about whether to use advanced technologies in their practice

Open-Air Rock-Art Conservation and Management Timothy Darvill, Antonio Batarda Fernandes, 2014-06-20 While much has been achieved in understanding and managing weather effects and erosion phenomena affecting ancient imagery within the relatively protected environments of caves and rock shelters the same cannot be said of rock art panels situated in the open air Despite the fact that the number of known sites has risen dramatically in recent decades there are few examples in which the weathering and erosion dynamics are under investigation with a view to developing proposals to mitigate the impact of natural and cultural processes Most of the work being done in different parts of the world appears to be ad hoc with minimal communication on such matters between teams and with the wider archaeological community This richly illustrated book evaluates rock art conservation in an holistic way bringing together researchers from across the world to share experiences of work in progress or recently completed The chapters focus on a series of key themes documentation projects and resource assessments the identification and impact assessment of weathering erosion processes at work in open air rock art sites the practicalities of potential or implemented conservation interventions experimentation and monitoring programs and general management issues connected with public presentation and the demands of ongoing research investigations Consideration is given to the conservation of open air rock art imagery from many periods and cultural traditions across the Old and New Worlds This timely volume will be of interest to conservators managers and researchers dealing with aesthetic and ethical issues as well as technical and practical matters regarding the conservation of open air rock art sites The Grove Encyclopedia of Materials and Techniques in Art Gerald W. R. Ward, 2008 The Grove Encyclopedia of Materials and Techniques deals with all aspects of materials techniques conservation and restoration in both traditional and nontraditional media including ceramics sculpture metalwork painting works on paper textiles video digital art and more Drawing upon the expansive scholarship in The Dictionary of Art and adding new entries this work is a comprehensive reference resource for artists art dealers collectors curators conservators students researchers and scholars Similar in design to The Grove Encyclopedia of Decorative Arts this one volume reference work contains articles of various lengths in alphabetical order The shorter more factual articles are combined with larger multi section articles tracing the development of materials and techniques in various geographical locations The Encyclopedia provides unparalleled scope and depth and it offers fully updated articles and bibliography as well as over 150 illustrations and color plates The Grove Encyclopedia of Materials and Techniques offers scholarly information on materials and techniques in art for anyone who studies creates collects or deals in works of art The entries are written to be accessible to a wide range of readers and the work is designed as a reliable and convenient resource covering this essential area in the visual arts Restoration and History Marcus Hall, 2010-02-01 Once a forest has been destroyed should one plant a new forest to emulate the old or else plant designer forests to satisfy our immediate needs Should we aim to re create forests or simply create them How does the past shed light on our environmental efforts and how does the present influence our environmental goals Can we predict the future of restoration This book explores how a consideration of time and history can improve the practice of restoration There is a past of restoration as well as past assumptions about restoration and such assumptions have political and social implications Governments around the world are willing to spend billions on restoration projects in the Everglades along the Rhine River in the South China Sea without acknowledging that former generations have already wrestled with repairing damaged ecosystems that there have been many kinds of former ecosystems and that there are many former ways of understanding such systems This book aims to put the dimension of time back into our understanding of environmental efforts Historic ecosystems can serve as models for our restorative efforts if we can just describe such ecosystems What conditions should be brought back and do such conditions represent new natures or better pasts A collective answer is given in these pages and it is not a unified answer Art Conservation W. (Bill) Wei, 2021-07-14 Conservators and other museum professionals face a large number of issues involving the mechanical behavior of materials including questions on craquelure restoring physically damaged objects art in transport or the selection of adhesives However science in conservation and museum studies curricula focusses mostly on chemistry This book fills this important gap in conservation training It is the first such book written specifically for the conservation community and professionals with little or no background in mechanical engineering It introduces the basics of mechanical properties and behavior of materials and objects with examples and exercises based on conservation practice More complex issues of mechanical loading and advanced solutions are also introduced
