Blood Desert Steven W. Booth, Harry Shannon, 2018-02-11 Sheriff Penny Miller's philandering ex husband is convinced the cattle on a ranch north of Flat Rock are being attacked by blood sucking bats Miller brushes him off since Terrill Lee has always been a conspiracy nut When the rancher dies suspiciously the property is sold to two eccentric women who open of all things a wine and knitting shop Their odd little business brings tourist money to Penny's sleepy little town along with two teenaged drug dealers and a huge heap of trouble In Blood Desert the thrilling prequel to The Hungry series there's a new kind of undead giving Penny a pain in the neck Though the zombie apocalypse remains one possible future Patient Zero has yet to be infected In this here and now Sheriff Miller ends up face to fang with deadly ravenous vampires who are determined to take over the entire state of Nevada starting with Flat Rock Readers of The Hungry zombie novels will love Blood Desert for its familiar characters serious scares and quirky black humor The somewhat younger Sheriff Penny Miller is as funny foul mouthed and courageous as ever Readers both new and old are in for a real treat

African Literatures in the Eighties, 2023-12-21 Matatu is a journal on African literatures and societies dedicated to interdisciplinary dialogue between literary and cultural studies historiography the social sciences and cultural anthropology Matatu is animated by a lively interest in African culture and literature including the Afro Caribbean that moves beyond worn out clichés of cultural authenticity and national liberation towards critical exploration of African modernities The East African public transport vehicle from which Matatu takes its name is both a component and a symbol of these modernities based on Western these days usually Japanese technology it is a vigorously African institution it is usually regarded with some anxiety by those travelling in it but is often enough the only means of transport available it creates temporary communicative communities and provides a transient site for the exchange of news storytelling and political debate Matatu is firmly committed to supporting democratic change in Africa to providing a forum for interchanges between African and European critical debates to overcoming notions of absolute cultural ethnic or religious alterity and to promoting transnational discussion on the future of African societies in a wider world Matatu will be published as journal as of 2016 All back volumes are still available in print Language, Literature, and the Dynamics of Conflict Eunice Ngongkum, Hans Fonka, 2023-12-18 Informed by a global space animated by various conflicts this book brings a refreshing perspective on how the disciplines of literature and language engage this phenomenon In its shift from a purely political interrogation of conflict the volume provides a broad analytic canvas on which human behaviour in such contexts can be examined This is an ultimate invitation to a re visioning of socio cultural parameters of identity construction borders natural resources religion cultural values beliefs governance ideology and globalisation The book s varied perspective animated by a rich diversity of literary and linguistic approaches gives it an interdisciplinary emphasis that will appeal to readers across disciplines Its ultimate message is that conflict is not subject bound The liberal analysis of different aspects makes the volume an invaluable asset not only to literature and language scholars but also to everyone with inclinations towards conflict creation and management

The Literature of Contemporary Sierra Leone Ernest Cole, Mohamed Kamara, 2025-03-25 What are Sierra Leonean and diaspora authors writing about today What genres are they working in What are future possibilities and directions of travel The ethnically and linguistically diverse nation of Sierra Leone boasts a rich cultural legacy and in the first decades of the twenty first century has built an internationally recognized literary canon despite the ravages caused by a brutal civil war and then the Ebola and Covid pandemics While acknowledging the country s literary and creative heritage dating back to the mid twentieth century this book interrogates a number of prominent themes and critical perspectives on Sierra Leone s contemporary literature Drawing from body studies post colonial theory spatial theory trauma theory ecocriticism history and cultural studies scholars and writers from West Africa and the United States tease out the beginnings ecology and dynamism of a bona fide national literature They do so through a careful examination of such themes as social oppression and class distinction dystopia ethnocentricity homophobia misogyny and gender disparities anthropocentrism self discovery social transformation identity social degradation genocide and trauma while also theorizing constructs such as home migration displacement community and return Throughout contributors argue for a better appreciation of a vibrant national literature by Sierra Leoneans themselves as well as its place in and contribution to world literature more generally African

Desert Journal Raymond B. Cowles,2023-11-15 Desert Journal A Naturalist Reflects on Arid California is both a tribute to the life and work of Raymond B Cowles and a call to reflect on humanity s relationship with nature Born in 1896 in South Africa Cowles developed a lifelong fascination with wildlife during his boyhood which shaped his pioneering work in reptilian thermoregulation a field he helped establish His research extended far beyond academia influencing generations of students and laying the foundation for ecological awareness in California and beyond Cowles was a visionary deeply concerned about the impact of human population growth on biodiversity Long before these ideas gained mainstream attention he identified the intrinsic link between overpopulation and environmental degradation Though his book on the subject was never published the themes resonate throughout his writings particularly in Chapter 23 of this volume Cowles holistic perspective embraced the biosphere as an interconnected entity and his ethical framework extended to all life forms He was not only a scientist but also a humanist reveling in the sensory experiences of nature and mourning their loss in an increasingly mechanized world His poetic reflections like a letter written shortly before his death reveal his enduring love for the natural world and his plea for others to preserve its beauty His life was one of dedication and insight as exemplified in his final public discussions about overpopulation and resource scarcity Even in his later years he demonstrated vitality intellectual sharpness and a profound ability to connect with people His legacy captured in this book and in the memories of those he inspired underscores the urgency of harmonizing human aspirations with the needs of the planet This title is part of UC Press s Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press s mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1977
