Alone Against the Atlantic Frank Page,1980-01-01      Sailing Solo Nic Compton,2003-06 One person one boat and mile upon mile of open sea Ever since Joshua Slocum circumnavigated the world in 1895 1898 sailors have dreamed of taking to the high seas alone and many have devoted their lives to doing just that Sir Francis Chichester sailed around the world in 266 days in 1966 and two years later Robin Knox Johnston became the first to do it non stop If one skipper could do it fast then others thought they could do it faster From the first Observer Single handed Transatlantic Race Ostar in 1960 the idea of lone sailors pitting their wits against each other and the elements aboard such delicate seeming craft has captured the public's imagination     Alone Daniel Gilles, 1977-01-01     Alone Daniel Gilles, 1976     Trial by Tasman Lindsay Wright, 2014

The singlehanded trans Tasman yacht race is a unique and special event. The first race was in 1970 and it is still the only singlehanded ocean race in the Southern Hemisphere and the second oldest singlehanded ocean race in the world. Sailing from New Plymouth to Mooloolaba near Brisbane it has spawned a rich harvest of great stories from the athletes, eccentrics, daredevils, sportspeople and visionaries who have competed, including the first woman to compete in a singlehanded ocean race and somewhat confusingly a one-legged singlehanded sailor. The races have been both exhilarating and terrifying. There have been a number of dramatic rescues, a stranding on Middleton Reef and several boats have been lost. Every race is covered and most chapters include race participants' own accounts of their race. Back cover: Tales from the singlehanded trans Tasman yacht races by the author of Blue Water. The singlehanded trans Tasman yacht race is a unique and special event. The first race was in 1970 and it is still the only singlehanded ocean race in the Southern Hemisphere and the second oldest singlehanded ocean race in the world. The next race is in April 2014. Sailing from New Plymouth to Mooloolaba near Brisbane it has spawned a rich harvest of great stories from the athletes, eccentrics, daredevils, sportspeople and visionaries who have competed, including the first woman to compete in a singlehanded ocean race and somewhat confusingly a one-legged singlehanded sailor. The races have been both exhilarating and terrifying. There have been a number of dramatic rescues, a stranding on Middleton Reef and several boats have been lost. Every race is covered and most chapters include race participants' own accounts of their race. Readers are given an insight into what makes people want to sail alone across one of the roughest pieces of water in the world and how individual skippers tackle loneliness and the practical aspects of sailing: cooking, keeping dry and sleeping, provided by publisher.
