Hebert, 2014-09-11 Historical ethnomusicology is increasingly acknowledged as a significant emerging subfield of ethnomusicology due to the fact that historical research requires a different set of theories and methods than studies of contemporary practices and many historiographic techniques are rapidly transforming as a result of new technologies In 2005 Bruno Nettl observed that the term historical ethnomusicology has begun to appear in programs of conferences and in publications Nettl 2005 274 and as recently as 2012 scholars similarly noted an increasing concern with the writing of musical histories in ethnomusicology Ruskin and Rice 2012 318 Relevant positions recently advanced by other authors include that historical musicologists are all ethnomusicologists now and that all ethnomusicology is historical Stobart 2008 yet we sense that such arguments while useful and theoretically correct may ultimately distract from careful consideration of the kinds of contemporary theories and rigorous methods uniquely suited to historical inquiry in the field of music In Theory and Method in Historical Ethnomusicology editors Jonathan McCollum and David Hebert along with contributors Judah Cohen Chris Goertzen Keith Howard Ann Lucas Daniel Neuman and Diane Thram systematically demonstrate various ways that new approaches to historiography and the related application of new technologies impact the work of ethnomusicologists who seek to meaningfully represent music traditions across barriers of both time and space Contributors specializing in historical musics of Armenia Iran India Japan southern Africa American Jews and southern fiddling traditions of the United States describe the opening of new theoretical approaches and methodologies for research on global music history In the Foreword Keith Howard offers his perspective on historical ethnomusicology and the importance of reconsidering theories and methods applicable to this field for the enhancement of musical understandings in the present and future
