by tracing the history of agreements between polities over weapons back to ancient times An understanding of this history allows him to put forward a typology of arms control It occurs at the end of major conflicts stabilises balances between states develops norms of behaviour manages weapons proliferation and acts as a tool of international organisations Stuart Croft examines the evolution of these five qualitatively different strategies and applies the typology to arms control agreements in the post Cold War world This definitive new study will be of interest to students in international relations and security studies as well as specialists in these disciplines
