Objecthood James Voorhies, 2017-02-24 The rise of the exhibition as critical form and artistic medium from Robert Rauschenberg's antimodernist non sites in 1968 to today's institutional gravitation toward the participatory. In 1968 Robert Rauschenberg reacted to Michael Fried's influential essay Art and Objecthood with a series of works called non sites. While Fried described the spectator's connection with a work of art as a momentary visual engagement, Rauschenberg's non sites asked spectators to do something more: to take time looking, walking, seeing, reading, and thinking about the combination of objects, images, and texts installed in a gallery. In Beyond Objecthood, James Voorhies traces a genealogy of spectatorship through the rise of the exhibition as a critical form and artistic medium. Artists like Rauschenberg, Group Material, and Michael Asher sought to reconfigure and expand the exhibition and the museum into something more active, open, and democratic by inviting spectators into new and unexpected encounters with works of art and institutions. This practice was sharply critical of the ingrained characteristics long associated with art institutions and conventional exhibition making, and yet Voorhies finds over time the critique has been diluted by efforts of the very institutions that now gravitate to the participatory. Beyond Objecthood focuses on innovative figures, artworks, and institutions that pioneered the exhibition as a critical form, tracing its evolution through the activities of curator Harald Szeemann, relational art, and New Institutionalism. Voorhies examines recent artistic and curatorial work by Liam Gillick, Thomas Hirschhorn, Carsten Holler, Maria Lind, Apolonija Uterš and others at such institutions as Documenta, e-flux, Manifesta, and Office for Contemporary Art Norway, and he considers the continued potential of the exhibition as a critical form in a time when the differences between art and entertainment increasingly blur.

James Turrell Craig E. Adcock, James Turrell, 1990-01-01 A much needed antidote to Art Writing as it is encountered in the art mags, his writing is fluent and the style attractive and engaging. Stephen Foster, University of Iowa Experience and Experimental Writing Paul Grimstad, 2013-08-15 The book traces connections between the literary experiments of Emerson, Poe, Melville, and Henry James and the emergence of classical American pragmatism.
