Mass Communication, Popular Taste and Organized Social Action

By PAUL F. LAZARFIELD and ROBERT K. MERTON

PROBLEMS INVOLVING THE ATTENTION of men change, and they change not at random but largely in accord with the altering demands of society and economy. . . . As a host of recent confessions, books and articles indicate, the role of radio, print and film in society has become a problem of interest to many and a source of concern to some. This shift in public interest appears to be the product of several social trends.

SOCIAL CONCERN WITH THE MASS MEDIA

Many are alarmed by the ubiquity and potential power of the mass media. It is widely felt that the mass media comprise a powerful instrument which may be used for good or for ill and that, in the absence of adequate controls, the latter possibility is on the whole more likely. For these are the media of propaganda, and Americans stand in peculiar dread of the power of propaganda. As the British observer, William Empson, recently remarked of us: "They believe in machinery more passionately than we do; and modern propaganda is a scientific machine; so it seems to them obvious that a mere reasoning man can't stand up against it. All this produces a curiously glibish attitude toward anyone who might be doing propaganda. 'Don't let that man come near. Don't let him tempt me, because if he does I'm sure to fall.'"

The ubiquity of the mass media promptly leads many to an almost magical belief in their enormous power. But there is another and, probably, a more realistic basis for widespread concern with the social role of the mass media; a basis which has to do with the changing types of social control exercised by powerful interest groups in society. Increasingly, the chief power groups, among which organized business occupies the most spectacular place, have come to adopt techniques for manipulating mass public through propaganda in place of more direct means of control.

Literary Taste, Culture, and Mass Communication Peter Hobley Davison, Rolf Meyersohn, Edward Shils, 1978 British Marxist Criticism Victor N. Paananen, 2021-12-12 British Marxist Criticism provides selective but extensive annotated bibliographies introductory essays and important pieces of work from each of eight British critics who sought to explain literary production according to the principles of Marxism Art and Social Life Peter Davison, Rolf Meyersohn, Edward Shils, 1978 Books in Series, 1985 Vols for 1980 issued in three parts Series Authors and Titles Culture and Everyday Life David Inglis, 2004-08-02 Culture is unquestionably a central topic in the contemporary social sciences In order to understand how people think feel value act and express themselves it is necessary to examine the cultures they create and are in turn created by Here David Inglis shows how the study of culture can be transformed by focusing in on how cultural forces shape influence structure and occasionally disrupt the day to day activities of individuals Reconsidering different views on culture what it is how it operates and how it relates to other aspects of the human and non human world this new book covers key areas such as high culture versus popular culture modern and postmodern culture globalization and culture culture and nature Specific issues covered range from the everyday aspects of sportive play artistic production and the mass media to car culture and global cuisine and students are introduced to some of the major thinkers on culture from Matthew Arnold to Bakhtin and Bourdieu Written in a concise student friendly manner theoretical arguments are illustrated with examples from film architecture and daily life making this an informative and indispensable introduction for those wishing to understand the complexities of culture The New Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature: Volume 4, 1900-1950 George Watson, I. R. Willison, 1972-12-07 More than fifty specialists have contributed to this new edition of volume 4 of The Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature The design of the original work has established itself so firmly as a workable solution to the immense problems of analysis articulation and coordination that it has been retained in all its essentials for the new edition The task of the new contributors has been to revise and integrate the lists of 1940 and 1957 to add materials of the following decade to correct and refine the bibliographical details already available and to re shape the whole according to a new series of conventions devised to give greater clarity and consistency to the entries Monographic Series Library of Congress, 1979 The British Library General Catalogue of Printed Books 1976 to 1982 British Library, 1983 Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress, 1980 Books in Print Supplement, 1988 The Future of the Arts David B. Pankratz, Valerie B. Morris, 1990 This volume presents the work of social scientists public policy analysts policy makers and arts funding decision makers The contributors seek to address serious issues confronting the future of the arts in America by defining the role of social science research in the formulation of public policies The chapters reflect the diverse disciplinary perspectives and methodologies which make up the broad enterprise of arts research and cover a wide array of current issues in arts research and public policy including the current state of arts and arts education research arts participation by ethnic cultures baby boomers and older adults emerging patterns of aesthetic choice public arts policy in the future and conditions for the growth and effective use of arts research Academics and students in political science policy analysis sociology economics arts administration and education policy makers and arts administrators will find The Future of the Arts a valuable resource The contributors conclude that the future of the arts in America will be shaped by a wide array of forces The challenge is in avoiding passive reactivity to these trends assessing their short term and long term influences and strategically developing policy options that are within the decision making control of leadership sectors in the complex arts policy world Until recently the political context of public arts policy has hindered the development and utilization of arts research In many ways this book illustrates the promise of research based policy formulation for the arts in America
