Children, Meaning-Making and the Arts Susan Wright, 2015-05-20 This Australian text is about children's voices, their minds, feelings, souls. It's about how children's voices are liberated through the arts and how children make and communicate meaning through still and moving images, sounds, textures, gestures, and the use of many other signs. It is also about how teachers, parents, peers, and the community influence children's early development and how quality arts education in early childhood is an essential component of lifelong learning. The authors are teachers and researchers who are respected for their contributions to early childhood arts education. All of them have addressed their topics via practical examples which are embedded in current philosophies and theories often stemming from original research and firsthand interactions with children.

It aims to facilitate evidence-based decision making and to provide an update on important developments in the private copying law and practice of countries that have such an exception in their legal arsenals.

Routledge International Handbook of Visual Criminology Michelle Brown, Eamonn Carrabine, 2017-07-06 Dynamically written and richly illustrated, the Routledge International Handbook of Visual Criminology offers the first foundational primer on visual criminology. Spanning a variety of media and visual modes, this volume assembles established researchers whose work is essential to understanding the role of the visual in criminology and emergent thinkers whose work is taking visual criminology in new directions. This book is divided into five parts that each highlight a key aspect of visual criminology, exploring the diversity of methods, techniques, and theoretical approaches currently shaping the field. Part I introduces formative positions in the developments of visual criminology and explores the different disciplines that have contributed to analysing images. Part II explores visual representations of crime across film, graphic art, documentary, police photography, press coverage, and graffiti and urban aesthetics. Part III discusses the relationship of visual criminology to criminal justice institutions like policing, punishment, and law. Part IV focuses on the distinctive ethical problems posed by the image, reflecting on the historical development, theoretical disputes, and methodological issues involved. Part V identifies new frameworks and emergent perspectives and reflects upon the distinctive challenges and limits that can be seen in this
