Society of London, 2007 There has lately been a growth in the number and level of studies of contourite deposits Most recent studies of contourites have two major lines of interest One propelled by the oil industry's continuous move into increasingly deep waters concerns their economic significance The other involves the stratigraphic palaeoceanographic record of ocean circulation changes imprinted on contourite deposits that can be a key to understanding better the climate ocean connection The application of many different theoretical experimental and empirical resources provided by geophysics sedimentology geochemistry petrology scale modeling and field geology are used in the 16 papers of this volume proposing answers to those two main aspects The papers are subdivided into two major categories economic interest and stratigraphic palaeoceanographic significance with case studies ranging from well documented drifts to new examples of modern and fossil series involving a large diversity of geographic and physiographic scenarios worldwide Antarctic Earth Science R. L. Oliver, P. R. James, J. B. Jago, 1983 The fourth international symposium on Antarctic Earth Sciences took place in Adelaide South Australia during the week 16-20 August 1982 This volume contains a record of the centenary activities celebrating Sir Douglas Mawson and the one hundred and seventy four papers that were presented by delegates for discussion over the five days Sir Douglas Mawson was part of the first team to reach the magnetic South Pole a leading geologist and scientific figure during the heroic age of Antarctic exploration The papers presented during the symposium were divided into fifteen categories covering east and west Antarctica marine land and glacial geology plate tectonics islands peninsulas climatic change and Precambrian and Cenozoic era activity The two hundred persons from sixteen countries who attended the symposium brought together a wide range of the most current expertise and research to share of which this volume provides a record
