Anthropology Of Landscape Perspectives On Place And Space:

The Anthropology of Landscape, 1995-06-29 Landscape has long had a submerged presence within anthropology both as a framing device which informs the way the anthropologist brings his or her study into view and as the meaning imputed by local people to their cultural and physical surroundings A principal aim of this volume follows from these interconnected ways of considering landscape the conventional Western notion of landscape may be used as a productive point of departure from which to explore analogous ideas local ideas can in turn reflexively be used to interrogate the Western construct The Introduction argues that landscape should be conceptualized as a cultural process a process located between place and space foreground actuality and background potentiality image and representation In the chapters that follow nine noted anthropologists and an art historian exemplify this approach drawing on a diverse set of case studies These range from an analysis of Indian calendar art to an account of Israeli nature tourism and from the creation of a metropolitan gaze in nineteenth century Paris to the soundscapes particular to the Papua New Guinean rainforests The anthropological perspectives developed here are of cross disciplinary relevance geographers art historians and archaeologists will be no less interested than anthropologists in this re envisaging of the notion of landscape

Philosophy in an African Place Bruce B. Janz, 2009-01-01 Philosophy in an African Place shifts the central question of African philosophy from Is there an African philosophy to What is it to do philosophy in this African place This book both opens up new questions within the field and also establishes philosophy in place a mode of philosophy which begins from the places in which concepts have currency and shows how a truly creative philosophy can emerge from focusing on questioning listening and attention to difference

Boundless Worlds Peter Wynn Kirby, 2009

International Handbook of Historical Archaeology Teresita Majewski, David Gaimster, 2009-06-07 In studying the past archaeologists have focused on the material remains of our ancestors Prehistorians generally have only artifacts to study and rely on the diverse material record for their understanding of past societies and their behavior Those involved in studying historically documented cultures not only have extensive material remains but also contemporary texts images and a range of investigative technologies to enable them to build a broader and more reflexive picture of how past societies communities and individuals operated and behaved Increasingly historical archaeology refers not to a particular period place or a method but rather an approach that interrogates the tensions between artifacts and texts irrespective of context In short historical archaeology provides direct evidence for how humans have shaped the world we live in today Historical archaeology is a branch of global archaeology that has grown in the last 40 years from its North American base into an increasingly global community of archaeologists each studying their area of the world in a historical context Where historical archaeology started as part of the study of the post Columbian societies of the United States and Canada it has now expanded to interface with the post medieval archaeologies of Europe and the diverse post imperial experiences of Africa Latin America and Australasia The 36 essays in the International Handbook of Historical Archaeology have been specially commissioned from the leading researchers in their fields creating a wide ranging digest of the increasingly global field of historical archaeology The volume is divided into two sections the first reviewing the key themes issues and approaches of historical archaeology today and the second containing a series of case studies charting the development and current state of historical archaeological practice around the world This key reference work captures the energy and diversity of this global discipline today

Ethnographic Practice in the Present Marit Melhuus,Jon P. Mitchell,Helena Wulff,2010 In its assessment of the current state of play of ethnographic practice in social anthropology this volume explores the challenges that changing social forms and changing understandings of the field pose to contemporary ethnographic methods These challenges include the implications of the remarkable impact social anthropology is having on neighboring disciplines such as history sociology cultural studies human geography and linguistics as well as the potential costs of this success for the discipline Contributors also discuss how the ethnographic method is influenced by current institutional contexts and historical traditions across a range of settings Here ethnography is featured less as a methodological tool box or technique but rather as a subject on which to reflect

Facility Siting Asa Boholm,Ragnar E. Lofstedt,2013-06-17 Annotation Examines the social political and environmental issues at stake and the acute conflicts over the siting of industrial facilities and infrastructure Essential reading for all involved in land use planning and facility siting at all levels and in all situations New in the Risk Society and Policy Series From dams to landfill sites and power plants to radioactive waste repositories the siting of facilities is a veritable minefield of conflicting data politics perception and controversy for industry planners and authorities and citizens This penetrating new edited collection examines risk power and identity in contests over the siting of infrastructure and industrial facilities Going beyond nimby ism experts in a variety of fields bring a multi perspective analysis to case studies from the UK US and Europe and expose the political and cultural dimensions of siting conflicts In the process they show how place attachment and notions of landscape and local identity play a prominent role in resistance to development

Tracking Rural Change Francesca Merlan,David Raftery,2009-04-01 A key intensifying change affecting rural areas in the last few decades has been a decline in the proportion of national populations whose principal livelihood is farming The corresponding re distribution of population has typically resulted in a net population loss to rural areas and diversification of rural activity The corporatization and technological modification of food production has prompted new policy challenges and has bound rural and urban populations together in new relationships articulated in moral discourses of custodianship food safety and sustainability Contributors to this volume came together in the attempt to stimulate collective insight into trends of rural change in Australia New Zealand and Europe The first two countries have been characterised by avowedly neoliberal rural policy with considerable departures from it in practice Europe on the other hand by a mix of policy measures which attempt to integrate land management and sustainability diversification and maintenance of a competitive farming sector within an overarching policy framework more overtly though only partially oriented towards sustaining rural society Aiming to build on research relating to the character of rural transitions this volume offers substantive and critical contributions to the understanding of the sources of unpredictability instability and continuity that underpin rural transition The papers explore changes and continuities in policy the governance of rural spaces technological developments relating to rural areas and populations and social forms of subjectivation and participation in increasingly diverse rural settings Liquidate: How Money is Dissolving the World Alf Hornborg, 2024-11-12 Liquidate: How Money is Dissolving the World examines the emergence of money and its social and ecological repercussions It views money as a new phenomenon in the evolution of life that has fundamentally transformed ecosystems and human social relations The appearance of coined money around 600 BCE coincided with the first abstract philosophies and religions This book shows how changes in human environmental relations have reflected changes in social relations generated by money The detached modern view of nature mirrors the socially detached modern individual However the abandonment of animism has not diminished the human propensity for fetishism the perception of artefacts such as money tokens as indexes of what they represent Market prices obscure the asymmetric global resource transfers that make increasingly advanced technologies possible where there is enough money Our fetishised understandings of money and technologies cannot deal with the escalating production of entropy underlying climate change They also drive the dramatic reduction of biological and cultural diversity under globalisation Given these problems many people reassess premodern and indigenous societies in search of more sustainable ideas on how to organise exchange Liquidate: How Money is Dissolving the World will be of interest to scholars working in anthropology sociology economics history semiotics comparative religions and indigenous studies Figured Worlds Professor John Clammer, J. R. Clammer, Sylvie Poirier, Eric Schwimmer, 2004-01-01 World Visions can conceive of everything except alternative world visions If this pronouncement by Umberto Eco is right how can any ethnic group conceive of living with another group on the same territory in Canada or elsewhere if their world visions are incompatible Can we sidestep incompatible world visions or should we try to understand them Figured Worlds explores the possibilities of equilibrium between commitments to mutual understanding and the framing of strategies of negotiation This collection begins its rich analytical investigation by describing how people Australian Aborigines New Zealand Maori Japanese and Africans first learn the figured worlds of their own culture made up of sensations affirmations and will prophecy revelation myth dream and metamorphoses It then sets out how diverse figured worlds within a given social system are related and concludes by offering insightful mappings of the dynamics of these relations perceived in both their existential ontological aspects as well as their material practical means
