Antitrust Policy Carl Kaysen, Donald F. and explores the applications of competition law and economics. In turn, the book analyses the interplay of intellectual property rights and patents in various aspects of competition law and investigates the impacts that developments in information technology such as big data analytics have on competition law. The book also discusses the impact of energy law reforms on energy markets from a competition law perspective. Competition law is a classic field of economic analysis. This is largely due to the fact that competition law uses terms such as market price and competition and must therefore rely on economic know-how and analyses. In the United States, economic analysis has greatly influenced not just the scholarship on antitrust law but also judicial decisions and agency enforcement. Antitrust law and economics are based on the traditional paradigm of neoclassical economics which relies on the assumption that the market players, i.e. consumers and producers, are rational. This approach to competition law was later received in Europe under the banner of a more economic approach. For the past two decades, behavioural law and economics, which seeks to generate better insights into legal phenomena by providing more realistic psychological foundations for economic models and to offer a multitude of applications in legislation and legal adjudication, has challenged the traditional economic approach to law in general and more recently to competition law specifically.

Comparative Competition Law and Economics Roger J. Van den Bergh, 2017-09-29. Offering a concise and critical comparison of EU competition law and US antitrust law from an economic perspective, this is the ideal textbook for international and interdisciplinary courses combining law and economic approaches.

Handbook of Law and Economics A. Mitchell Polinsky, Steven Shavell, 2007-11-07. Law can be viewed as a body of rules and legal sanctions that channel behavior in socially desirable directions, for example by encouraging individuals to take proper precautions to prevent accidents or by discouraging competitors from colluding to raise prices. The incentives created by the legal system are thus a natural subject of study by economists. Moreover, given the importance of law to the welfare of societies, the economic analysis of law merits prominent treatment as a subdiscipline of economics. This two-volume Handbook is intended to foster the study of the legal system by economists. The two volumes form a comprehensive and accessible survey of the current state of the field. Chapters prepared by leading specialists of the area summarize received results as well as new developments.

International Contracts and National Economic Regulation: Dispute Resolution Through International Commercial Arbitration Mahmood Bagheri, 2000-12-06. The growth of national economic regulation and the process of globalisation increasingly expose international transactions to an array of regulations from different jurisdictions. These developments often contribute to widespread international contractual failures when parties claim the incompatibility of their contractual obligations with regulatory laws. The author challenges conventional means of dispute resolution and argues for an interdisciplinary approach whereby disciplines such as international economic law, conflict of laws, contract law, and economic regulations are functionally united to resolve international and multifaceted regulatory disputes. He identifies the normative foundation of contract law as an important determinant in this process, contending that contract law is essentially neutral and underpinned by the concept of corrective justice while economic regulations are mainly prompted by distributive justice Applying this corrective distributive justice dichotomy to international contracts the author critically assesses major conflict of laws approaches such as proper law the Rome Convention and governmental interest analysis which could disregard either public interest or private rights The author taking these theories into account proposes an alternative two dimensional interest analysis approach He tests the viability of this approach with reference to arbitral awards and court decisions in various jurisdictions and concludes that it uniquely fits into the structure of international commercial arbitration In adopting this approach arbitrators would take into account both corrective and distributive justice and to the extent that corrective justice prevails would be able to avert a total failure of the contract EU Competition

Law Alison Jones, Brenda Sufrin, 2014 A stand alone guide to competition law providing extracts from key cases academic works and legislation along with incisive critique and commentary from two experts in the field Competition Law in China and the EU Xingyu Yan, 2024-12-16 This book presents a comprehensive review of the Chinese and European responses to the abuse of market dominance with a focus on the impact of antitrust institutional dynamics on enforcement decisions It uses the methods of functional comparison and case analysis to investigate how theories of harm relating to specific types of abuse differ within and across competition law regimes due to institutional dynamics The Chinese and EU competition law regimes serve as excellent examples for this investigation because they have similar substantive laws on paper but vastly different institutional settings The book examines first individually and then comparatively how the distinct institutional dynamics in the Chinese and EU regimes shape the development of theories of harm This volume will appeal to competition law scholars students and practitioners seeking a more nuanced understanding of how competition law works in the EU and China It will also interest scholars trying to approach the Chinese legal system from an engaging rather than alienating standpoint Antitrust Law Journal , 1986
