Air Quality and Automobile Emission Control, a Report by the Coordinating Committee on Air Quality Studies, National Academy of Sciences, National Academy of Engineering United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Public Works, 1974.

The Ongoing Challenge of Managing Carbon Monoxide Pollution in Fairbanks, Alaska National Research Council, Transportation Research Board, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee on Carbon Monoxide Episodes in Meteorological and Topographical Problem Areas, 2002-09-22. Carbon monoxide (CO) is a toxic air pollutant produced largely from vehicle emissions. Breathing CO at high concentrations leads to reduced oxygen transport by hemoglobin, which has health effects that include impaired reaction timing, headaches, lightheadedness, nausea, vomiting, weakness, clouding of consciousness, coma, and at high enough concentrations and long enough exposure, death. In recognition of those health effects, the U.S.

Environmental Protection Agency EPA as directed by the Clean Air Act established the health based National Ambient Air Quality Standards NAAQS for CO in 1971 Most areas that were previously designated as nonattainment areas have come into compliance with the NAAQS for CO but some locations still have difficulty in attaining the CO standards Those locations tend to have topographical or meteorological characteristics that exacerbate pollution In view of the challenges posed for some areas to attain compliance with the NAAQS for CO congress asked the National Research Council to investigate the problem of CO in areas with meteorological and topographical problems This interim report deals specifically with Fairbanks Alaska Fairbanks was chosen as a case study because its meteorological and topographical characteristics make it susceptible to severe winter inversions that trap CO and other pollutants at ground level Federal Register ,1992-04-15 The Automotive Gray Market John B. Hege,2022-04-05 In the 1970s as car enthusiasts in the U S grew bored with models manufactured under tightening pollution and safety regulations some innovative dealers exploited a legal loophole designed to allow U S soldiers and diplomats to return from abroad with their vehicles to import exotic cars never intended for sale in America During the 1980s a rise in the value of the dollar made car shopping in Europe a bargain hunter s dream A network of unauthorized gray market importers and conversion shops emerged bypassing factory channels and retrofitting cars to meet U S regulations and emission standards at least in theory These cars had to pass through U S customs a system equipped to handle only a few independent imports annually As applications ballooned the regulatory system collapsed This is the story of a misunderstood but fascinating period in the automotive industry when creative importers found ways to put American motorists in new Ferraris while the EPA and DOT were backed up with mounds of paperwork Automotive Computer Systems: Shop manual Don Knowles,Jack Erjavec,1996 EPA Journal ,1993 Highway Safety Literature Annual Cumulation 1969; Vehicle Safety Bibliography.
