

THE HMAR AUTONOMY MOVEMENTS IN MIZORAM

INTRODUCTION: Mizoram is a state which is situated in the region of northeast India. It lies between East longitude $92^{\circ}15'$ to $93^{\circ}29'$ and North latitude $21^{\circ}58'$ to $24^{\circ}35'$, covering total area of 21,087 sq.kms. The Hmars are an indigenous tribal people in the Northeast India, who settle in different states of Northeast India (including Mizoram, Manipur, Assam, Meghalaya and Tripura). Hmars are generally considered to be part of the larger Mizo ethnic group, and they were the first settlers in the land of Mizo people, what is now the state of Mizoram. Till today, we can see the Hmars names of many villages and river in the Champhai area of the state bordering Myanmar. Before they were known as Old Kukis and with the arrival of the other Mizo groups, such as Lushai, Pawi, Mara and others, the Hmars spread out to the other parts of the Northeast regions: Manipur, Assam, Meghalaya and Tripura. Here in this paper we shall mainly focus on the Hmar Autonomy Movements in Mizoram to maintain their culture, their language, and their autonomy continues to this day.

Mizo Movements:

The Hmars struggles for Autonomy movements in Mizoram has its root from Mizo Movements. Towards the end of British rule in India, there was a grassroots movement in the Lushai Hills (now Mizoram, then a part of Assam) against the chieftainship system that was exploited by the British administration. This led to the formation of the Mizo Commoners Union in 1946, later renamed Mizo Union (MU). The MU also demanded the unification of all Mizo(Hmars)-inhabited areas in Manipur and Assam(including Lushai Hills) into a single administrative unit, and various units of the MU were set up outside Mizo Hills District. After India gained Independence, in 1952, the Lushai Hills Autonomous District Council of Assam, a body with significant governing powers, was formed and soon after abolished the chieftainship system. The governing body was renamed the Mizo Hills District (MHD) Council in 1954. . However, the demand for integration remained unfulfilled.

In 1959, another political movement in MHD gained momentum. The Mizo National Famine Front (MNFF), which later became Mizo National Front (MNF), protested against the indifference shown by the Assam government in handling a serious famine in the area. The main objective of the MNF later became self-determination and the establishment of 'Independent Zoram' comprising all Mizo-inhabited areas in Manipur and Assam(including Lushai Hills). This movement culminated in an armed rebellion in 1966, followed by years of underground activities. After several rounds of negotiations, the MNF signed the Mizo Accord with the Government of India on June 30, 1986. And on February 20, 1987, Mizoram became its own State under the Constitution of India; however, it did not include Mizo-inhabited areas outside MHD. Therefore, Hmars living outside Mizoram feel discontentment against these Movements, as neither of these Movements addressed their hopes and aspirations having been support and took active part in the MU- and MNF-led integration movements. This discontentment led to the growth of Hmar Autonomy Movements within Mizoram.

Ethnicity and Autonomy Movement Chandana Bhattacharjee, 1996 Chiefly on the movement of Bodo people for creation of a separate Bodoland in Assam by Bodoland Autonomous Council Inside the Politics of Self-determination Kathleen Gallagher Cunningham, 2014 There are currently over 100 stateless nations pressing for greater self determination around the globe The vast majority of these groups will never achieve independence Many groups will receive some accommodation over self determination many will engage in civil war over self determination and in many cases internecine violence will plague these groups This book examines the dynamic internal politics of states and self determination groups The internal structure and political dynamics of states and self determination groups significantly affect information and credibility problems faced by these actors as well as the incentives and opportunities for states to pursue partial accommodation of these groups Using new data on the internal structure of all self determination groups and their states and on all accommodation in self determination disputes this book shows that states with some but not too many internal divisions are best able to accommodate self determination groups and avoid civil war When groups are more internally divided they are both much more likely to be accommodated and to get into civil war with the state and also more likely to have fighting within the group Detailed comparison of three self determination disputes in the conflict torn region of northeast India reveals that internal divisions in states and groups affect when these groups get the accommodation they seek which groups violently rebel and whether actors target violence against their own co ethnics The argument and evidence in this book reveal the dynamic effect that internal divisions within SD groups and states have on their ability to bargain over self determination Kathleen Gallagher Cunningham demonstrates that understanding the relations between states and SD groups requires looking at the politics inside these actors Go To Guide for CUET (UG) Political Science with 2024 (2 Sets), 2023 (2 sets) & 2022 Previous Year Solved Papers & 10 Practice Sets 4th Edition | NCERT Coverage with

Education and Society in a Changing Mizoram Lakshmi Bhatia, 2012-12-06 Located in the domain of cultural politics the book with rich ethnographical data from Mizoram a lesser known and understood state brings the community state and culture to centre stage along with family and stratification of the sociological discourse in education The book argues for a re look at school education in Mizoram besides providing critical insights into the North East region as a whole It also points to the dilemmas of development in that region and suggests possible ways out of the impasse Marking a significant departure from conventional thinking on education as human capital as reflected in North East Vision 2020 the book strongly advocates the need for critical pedagogies based on learning from conflict inculcating the values of tolerance and compassion as a precursor to peace reconceptualising development not merely as economic but as indicator of national happiness and valuing lives equally besides respect for traditional institutions thus marking a break from the much resented paternalism that underpins all state interventions in education One of the first studies of its kind regarding experience and practice of education the book makes an important contribution to the role that education can play to usher in peace and promote respect for differences
