Teaching with Fire Sam M. Intrator, Megan Scribner, 2003-10-10 Reclaim Your Fire Teaching with Fire is a glorious collection of the poetry that has restored the faith of teachers in the highest most transcendent values of their work with children Those who want us to believe that teaching is a technocratic and robotic skill devoid of art or joy or beauty need to read this powerful collection So for that matter do we all Jonathan Kozol author of Amazing Grace and Savage Inequalities When reasoned argument fails poetry helps us make sense of life A few well chosen images the spinning together of words creates a way of seeing where we came from and lights up possibilities for where we might be going Dip in read and ponder share with others It s inspiration in the very best sense Deborah Meier co principal of The Mission Hill School Boston and founder of a network of schools in East Harlem New York In the Confucian tradition it is said that the mark of a golden era is that children are the most important members of the society and teaching is the most revered profession Our journey to that ideal may be a long one but it is books like this that will sustain us for who are we all at our best save teachers and who matters more to us than the children Peter M Senge founding chair SoL Society for Organizational Learning and author of The Fifth Discipline Those of us who care about the young and their education must find ways to remember what teaching and learning are really about We must find ways to keep our hearts alive as we serve our students Poetry has the power to keep us vital and focused on what really matters in life and in schooling Teaching with Fire is a wonderful collection of eighty eight poems from such well loved poets as Walt Whitman Langston Hughes Billy Collins Emily Dickinson and Pablo Neruda Each of these evocative poems is accompanied by a brief story from a teacher explaining the significance of the poem in his or her life's work. This beautiful book also includes an essay that describes how poetry can be used to grow both personally and professionally. Teaching With Fire was written in partnership with the Center for Teacher Formation and the Bill Melinda Gates Foundation. Royalties from this book will be used to fund scholarship opportunities for teachers to grow and learn. Interviews With Brief Therapy Experts Michael F. Hoyt, 2013-05-13 This book is a compilation of twelve interviews with brief therapy experts and some of the field's most influential innovators. O'Hanlon, DeShazer, White, and Meichenbaum, to name a few. The interviews conducted to explore technical, theoretical, and ethical aspects of the theory and practice of brief therapy offer the give and take spontaneity that can only be found in an interview style. The selection of the content is based on both the expertise of the interviewees as well as those issues of most concern to the field: managed care and economics, ethics, and being solution-focused. The Origins of Chinese Literary Hermeneutics Martin Svensson Ekström, 2024-03-01 Explores how China's oldest poetry collection was interpreted in a Confucian exegetical text, the Mao Commentary, in the mid-second century BCE. The Shijing Canon of Odes is China's oldest poetry collection, traditionally considered to have been edited by Confucius himself. Despite their enormous importance for Confucianism and Chinese civilization, the 305 odes have for millennia also puzzled readers. Why did the Sage include in the Canon apparently lewd poems about women promising men to hitch up their skirts and wade the river, and men tossing and turning in bed yearning for young women? What did the innumerable representations of plants, beasts, and birds, and of various climactic and astronomical phenomena signify beyond their immediate function as natural descriptions? One such puzzled reader was Mao Heng, a learned Confucian employed at a minor court in the mid-second century BCE. The object of this study is the Commentary that Mao composed on the Odes and, in particular, the hermeneutic tool, the xing, that he invented to explain the figurality and tropes at play in them. Mao's xingish interpretation of the Odes is both genuinely hermeneutic in that it explains the rhetorical organization of these poems and thoroughly ideological since it allows Mao to transform them into Confucian dogma. The book also argues that the xing content function and cultural importance is comparable to the Aristotelian concept of metaphor/metaphora and that the xing in the Odes and the practice of shi Chinese poetry demand an intercultural comparative reading for a more nuanced understanding. Learning Native Wisdom Gary H. Holthaus, 2008-05-30 From the Publisher: Many native North American cultures have origins that predate Confucius, who lived five hundred years before the birth of Christ. For generations, the people of these traditions have thrived under conditions that many view as harsh, if not hostile. Through their close association with nature, members of native communities have created complex systems for cooperating with one another and living within their environments. Learning Native Wisdom: What Traditional Cultures Teach Us about Subsistence, Sustainability, and Spirituality explains how to nurture a society by closely observing the traditions of various native cultures. Author Gary Holthaus explores the need to live sustainably in harmony with the land in order to preserve our cultures, communities, and humankind itself Holthaus asserts that all cultures are subsistence cultures urban or rural all humans depend on the land and its provisions for survival Humankind faces a convergence of forces climate change oil depletion loss of water loss of topsoil and species die off of proportions that exceed those of the past 65 million years In Learning Native Wisdom Holthaus shows that any path to sustainability includes elements of both subsistence and spirituality The book offers a way to confront potential perils and create a better future

Back from the Far Field Bernard W. Quetchenbach, 2000 Many poets writing after World War II have found the individual focus of contemporary poetics poorly suited to making statements directed at public issues and public ethics The desire to invest such individualized poetry with greater cultural authority presented difficulties for Vietnam protest poets for example and it has been a particular challenge for nature writers in the Thoreau tradition who have attempted to serve as advocates for the natural world Examining the implications of this dilemma Bernard W. Quetchenbach locates the poets Robert Bly Gary Snyder and Wendell Berry within two traditions the American nature writing tradition and the newer tradition of contemporary poetics He compares the work of two other twentieth century poets Robinson Jeffers and Theodore Roethke to illustrate how the contemporary shift toward a poetics focused on the poet's life has affected portrayals of nature and the public voice in poetry Turning back to the work of Bly Snyder and Berry Quetchenbach assesses their attempts to reinvent the public voice in the context of contemporary poetics and what effect these attempts have had on their work He argues that these poets have learned from their postwar generation techniques for adapting a personalized poetics to environmental advocacy In addition to modifying what critics have called the poetics of immediacy these poets have augmented their poetic output with prose and identified themselves with long standing traditions of poetic ethical and spiritual authority In doing so Bly Snyder and Berry have attempted to solve not only a problem inherent in contemporary poetics but also the larger problem of the role of the poet in a society that does not recognize poetry While it would be an overstatement to suggest that these three figures have found a place for the poet in American life they have reached audiences that extend beyond traditional readers of poetry At the end of the twentieth century Quetchenbach concludes poets have begun to identify and direct their writing to specific audiences defined less by aesthetic preferences and more by a shared interest in and dedication to the work's subject matter Whether revealing a disturbing trend for poetry or an encouraging one for environmentalism and other political causes it is one of many provocative conclusions Quetchenbach draws from his examination of postwar nature poetry
