

BAB RULES for (Proctored) Academic Evaluations

Students should familiarize themselves with the BAB rules.

Ignorance of the rules is no excuse.

If there are contradictions between BAB rules, syllabus regulations, and the Student Code of Ethics (Student Code of Conduct), the provisions in the Students Code of Ethics (Student Code of Conduct) prevail over the BAB rules and syllabus. If there are contradictions between BAB rules and syllabus regulations, the BAB rules prevail.

Any situation not explicitly covered by this and other regulations/policies will be resolved based on reasonable professional judgment.

In case of any violations described below in rules #3, and #4, the BAB program will inform the Office of the Registrar (OR), and the violation(s) will be included in the student's permanent record (for other violations reporting will be considered based on a case), based on the violation other procedures and disciplinary measures may follow. The instructor, the student, and the BAB program chair will be copied on the email to the OR.

1. Students must have their student ID cards with them during the proctored academic evaluations. If a student forgets to bring the student ID card, the student either will not be allowed to participate in the evaluation or, upon the instructor's approval, can participate, conditional on the identification check by the instructor through Jenzabar at that point (and the ID card presented later if need be). If the instructor is not present (or is present but finds this a necessary procedure), then the student should send own photo taken at that point of evaluation to the instructor, copying the proctor and the BAB program coordinator. The work will not be graded if the student does not pass this identification check, calling for the respective procedures to start.
2. Students are not allowed to participate in the academic evaluation if they are late for more than 15 minutes. In exceptional instances, the instructor can let the student participate in the evaluation based on reasonable judgment and circumstances.
3. The students should have with them and at/near their desks only authorized items. The unauthorized items are the ones that have not been expressly allowed by the instructor. The unauthorized items should be put away and turned off if relevant. Examples of such items are devices (e.g., cell phones, smart watches, (micro)earphones, etc.), materials (e.g., books, notes on papers, hands/arms, writing board, etc.). This is a simple rule, and it is the student's responsibility to ensure they have only authorized items with them and at/near their desks. Any unauthorized item (even turned off, unused, or of no significant importance for the test) identified with the student during the academic evaluation will lead to automatic failure of the academic evaluation (grade 0).
4. During computer-based exams, unauthorized actions cannot be taken by the students in their accounts (or on behalf of a student through a student's account) and/or on the computer. If unauthorized actions are identified, the disciplinary measure in rule #3 applies. The unauthorized actions are the ones that have not been expressly allowed by the instructor (for example, a student opening up a separate website/file not expressly allowed by the instructor). The student, when using the computer, should make sure no additional (i.e., unauthorized) files/webpages are open before the start of the academic evaluation, and if open, all should be closed before the evaluation starts (or the student should ask the proctor/instructor to close them). Anything identified once the academic evaluation starts is considered an unauthorized action.
5. The students are not allowed to share authorized calculators with each other during academic evaluation. The violation will be reported to the instructor. The calculator should be a non-programmable, non-financial, and non-graphing scientific calculator unless other types are allowed by the instructor. If not allowed, anything other than a simple calculator is considered an unauthorized item; hence the disciplinary measure in rule #3 applies.
6. When the papers are being distributed, or the academic evaluation is in process or is over, and papers are being handed in, the students are not allowed to:
  - a. start to read the questions or complete them before the start of the academic evaluation is announced (if required by the instructor)
  - b. talk to themselves (by any means)
  - c. communicate with each other (by any means)
  - d. look at another student's paper/computerThe violation will be reported to the instructor.
7. Students are not allowed to take a wrong seat not assigned to them (if relevant). The violation will be reported to the instructor.
8. If the integrity of the academic evaluation process is at risk, students can be asked to change their seats or comply with other requirements. This may happen more than once. The violation will be reported to the instructor.
9. The instructor may decide to address questions for clarification (e.g., type/omission, translation). If so, the instructor will approach the students if they raise their hands. The student can ask these questions only to the instructor or TA, if authorized (no one else in the room). This process should be quiet so as not to disturb other students.
10. Students are not allowed to leave the room during the academic evaluation for any reason other than a medical emergency. In such cases, the student should immediately inform the proctor and instructor about the issue by raising a hand. Among others, an AUA nurse or an emergency call may be considered.
11. Whether the student is allowed to hand in/submit the work and leave the room before the academic evaluation is over is to be determined by the instructor.

Good luck!
