

Dance Around Gulliver

by composed by Austin Durack

Austin Durack plays this tune in the traditional uilleann style, with most of the notes played by allowing the notes from left to right. When you see an acc (accents) it means that you should play the notes in the following order: acc (accents) first without ornaments. This arrangement also uses both the acc and the acc (accents) because they have included both a acc (accents) and a acc (accents) and is written in the acc (accents) style. Austin wrote the tune with a view to the acc (accents) style and a view to the acc (accents) style. Austin wrote the tune with a view to the acc (accents) style and a view to the acc (accents) style.

AUSTIN DURACK

A folk singer and composer from Ireland, Austin Durack is well known in the country and regularly tours throughout Germany, Switzerland and Poland presenting his music to folk audiences. Since 1972 he has written over 100 compositions, and in 1975 won an award in the American Song Festival.

After playing guitar for many years, Austin purchased his first dulcimer in 1971 from a luthier in Dublin, County Kerry. He quickly developed a love for the instrument even though, as Austin says, "I had to plough a lone furrow as there were only a handful of dulcimer players in Ireland, and so far I haven't met any of them." In the summer of 1980, Jerry Backlund and I met Austin in Ireland. We were impressed with his progress and enthusiasm for the dulcimer, and we shared him what we knew from then, his creativity with the instrument has flourished, and he has composed many songs and tunes on the instrument.
