Georgian Poetry is a compilation of the Georgian Poetry anthologies published by Edward Marsh from 1911-22 edited and with a new introduction by Keith Hale. The Georgians in their day were acclaimed as bold, fresh and realistic in their use of language. D. H. Lawrence, a contributor to the anthologies, said the first collection was like a big breath taken when we are waking up after a night of oppressive dreams. Lawrence reviewed the first anthology in John Middleton Murry's Rhythm, proclaiming: "I worship Christ, I worship Jehovah, I worship Pan, I worship Aphrodite. I want them all, all the gods. They are all God. But I must serve in real love. If I take my whole passionate spiritual and physical love to the woman who in return loves me, that is how I serve God. And my hymn and my game of joy is my work. All of which I read in the Anthology of Georgian Poetry." Please note that this volume has nothing whatsoever to do with the state of Georgia or the country of Georgia. Watersgreen House is an independent international book publisher with editorial staff in the UK and USA. One of our aims at Watersgreen House is to showcase same-sex affection in works by important gay and bisexual authors in ways which were not possible at the time the books were originally published. Excerpt from Georgian Poetry 1920 1922 This in the words of Pirate Smee was a kind of a compliment but it was also to quote the same hero galling and I have wished for an opportunity of disowning the pretension which I found attributed to me of setting up as a pundit or a pontifi or a Petronius Arbiter for I have neither the sure taste nor the exhaustive reading nor the ample leisure which would be necessary in any such role The origin of these books which is set forth in the memoir of Rupert Brooke was simple and humble I found ten years ago that there were a number of writers doing work which appeared to me extremely good but which was narrowly known and I thought that anyone however unprofessional and meagrely gifted who presented a conspectus of it in a challenging and manageable form might be doing a good turn both to the poets and to the reading public So I think I may claim it proved to be The first volume seemed to supply a want It was eagerly bought the con tinuation of the affair was at once taken so much for granted as to be almost unavoidable and there has been no break in the demand for the successive books If they have won for themselves any position there is no possible reason except the pleasure they have given Having entered upon a course of disclamation I should like to make a mild protest against a further charge that Georgian Poetry has merely encouraged a small clique of mutually indistinguishable poetasters to abound in their own and each other s sense or nonsense It is natural that the poets of a generation should have points in common but to my fond eye those who have graced these collections look as diverse as sheep to their shepherd or the members of a Chinese family to their uncle and if there is an allegation which I would deny wit j both bandr it is this that an insipid sameness is the chief characteristic of an anthology which offers to name almost at random seven only out of forty oh ominous academic number the work of Messrs Abercrombie Davies de la Mare Graves Lawrence Nichols and Squire About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
