

The background of the entire page is a photograph of a natural landscape. In the foreground, there are dense green trees and foliage. In the middle ground, a valley opens up, showing more trees and a path. In the far distance, there are rolling hills or mountains under a sky filled with soft, grey clouds. The overall tone is peaceful and naturalistic.

well as health care professionals and providing an overview of the field of health science and health promotion for PhD students and researchers. Written by leading experts from seven countries in Europe, America, Africa, and Asia, it first discusses the theory of health promotion and vital concepts. It then presents updated evidence-based health promotion approaches in different populations: people with chronic diseases, cancer, heart failure, dementia, mental disorders, long-term ICU patients, elderly individuals, families with newborn babies, palliative care patients, and examines different health promotion approaches integrated into primary care services. This edited scientific anthology provides much needed knowledge translating research into guidelines for practice. Today's medical approaches are highly developed; however, patients are human beings with a wholeness of body, mind, spirit. As such, providing high quality and effective health care requires a holistic physical, psychological, social, spiritual model of health care. A great number of patients, both in hospitals and in primary health care, suffer from the lack of a holistic-oriented health approach. Their condition is treated, but they feel scared, helpless, and lonely. Health promotion focuses on improving people's health in spite of illnesses. Accordingly, health care that supports/promotes patients' health by identifying their health resources will result in better patient outcomes: shorter hospital stays, less re-hospitalization, being better able to cope at home, and improved well-being, which in turn lead to lower health care costs. This scientific anthology is the first of its kind in that it connects health promotion with the salutogenic theory of health. Throughout the chapters, the authors here expand the understanding of health promotion beyond health protection and disease prevention. The book focuses on describing and explaining salutogenesis as an umbrella concept, not only as the key concept of sense of coherence.

Justice, Luck & Responsibility in Health Care Yvonne Denier, Chris Gastmans, Antoon Vandevelde, 2012-12-24. In this book, an international group of philosophers, economists, and theologians focus on the relationship between justice, luck, and responsibility in health care. Together, they offer a thorough reflection on questions such as: How should we understand justice in health care? Why are health care interests so important that they deserve special protection? How should we value health? What are its functions, and do these make it different from other goods? Furthermore, how much equality should there be? Which inequalities in health and health care are unfair, and which are simply unfortunate? Which matters of health care belong to the domain of justice, and which to the domain of charity? And to what extent should we allow personal responsibility to play a role in allocating health care services and resources, or in distributing the costs? With this book, the editors meet a double objective. First, they provide a comprehensive philosophical framework for understanding the concepts of justice, luck, and responsibility in contemporary health care; and secondly, they explore whether these concepts have practical force to guide normative discussions in specific contexts of health care, such as prevention of infectious diseases or in matters of reproductive technology. Particular and extensive attention is paid to issues regarding end-of-life care.

Ethics in Community-Based Elder Care Martha B. Holstein, Phyllis B. Mitzen, 2001-10-11. Caring for elders outside of institutions is the fastest growing sector of US health care. Building on their research study at the Park Ridge Center editors Holstein and Mitzen together with a team of experts examine the complexities involved in developing an ethics for community based long term care They also challenge policymakers to make home care a more viable option for older people in need Chapters address many of the ethical and practical problems that arise in the care of older people with physical and mental disabilities including how to allocate scarce funds how to keep good caregivers how to balance concerns of autonomy risk and safety and worker stress The volume is an excellent resource for practitioners policymakers and students
