Anthropologist At Work Ruth Benedict:

An Anthropologist at Work Ruth Benedict, 2017-09-04 An Anthropologist at Work is the product of a long collaboration between Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead. Mead was Benedict's student, colleague, and eventually her biographer. Here she has collected the bulk of Ruth Benedict's writings. This includes letters between these two seminal anthropologists, correspondence with Franz Boas, Benedict's teacher, Edward Sapir's poems, and notes from studies that Benedict had collected throughout her life. Since Benedict wrote little, Mead has fleshed out the narratives by adding background information on Benedict's life, work, and the cultural atmosphere of the time. Ruth Benedict formed her own view of the contribution of anthropology before the first steps were taken in the study of how individual human beings with their given potentialities came to embody their culture. In her later work, she came to accept and sometimes to use the work in culture and personality that depended as much upon social psychology as upon cultural anthropology. She came to recognize that society, made up of persons or organized in groups, was as important as a subject of study as the culture of a society. This volume, greatly enhanced by Mead's contributions, is a record of what was important to Benedict in her life and work. It is expertly ordered and assembled in a way that will be accessible to students and professionals alike. An Anthropologist at Work. Writings of Ruth Benedict. By Margaret Mead. [With Plates, Including Portraits.]. Ruth Fulton BENEDICT, Margaret Mead, 1959 An Anthropologist at Work Ruth Benedict, 1959 An Anthropologist at Work Ruth Benedict, 1973

Ruth Benedict Margaret Mead, 2005 By weaving discussions of the personal and professional writings of Ruth Benedict, Margaret Mead presents the anthropologist's work in the context of her life and times. Mead also defends Benedict's humanistic approach to anthropology as she considers her most important works. In addition to a selection of Benedict's anthropological writings, this edition includes new forewords by two leading Benedict scholars. Writings of Ruth Benedict Ruth Benedict, Margaret Mead, 1966 Ruth Benedict Margaret M. Caffrey, 2013-11-04 Poet, anthropologist, feminist, Ruth Fulton Benedict was all of these and much more. Born into the last years of the Victorian era, she came of age during the Progressive years and participated in inaugurating the modern era of American life. Ruth Benedict, Stranger in This Land, provides an intellectual and cultural history of the first half of the twentieth century through the life of an important and remarkable woman. As a lyricist, poet, Ruth Benedict helped define Modernism. As an anthropologist, she wrote the classic Patterns of Culture and at one point was considered the foremost anthropologist in the United States, the first woman ever to attain such status. She was an intellectual and an artist living in a time when women were not encouraged to be either. In this fascinating study, Margaret Caffrey attempts to place Benedict in the cultural matrix of her time and successfully shows the way in which Benedict was a product of and reacted to the era in which she lived. Caffrey goes far beyond providing simple biographical material in this well-written interdisciplinary study. Based on exhaustive research, including access for the first time to the papers of Margaret Mead, Benedict's student and friend, Caffrey is able to put Benedict's life clearly in perspective. By identifying the family and educational influences that so sharply influenced Benedict's psychological makeup, the author also closely analyzes the currents of thought that were strong when Victorianism paralleled the Modernism that figured in Benedict's life work. The result is a richly detailed study of a gifted woman. This important work will be of interest to students of Modernism, poetry and women's studies as well as to anthropologists.

Anthropological Resources Lee S. Dutton, 2013-05-13 This work provides access to information on the rich and often little known legacy of anthropological scholarship preserved in a diversity of archives, libraries and museums. Selected anthropological manuscripts, papers, fieldnotes, site reports, photographs and sound recordings in more than 150 repositories are described. Coverage of resources in North American repositories is extensive, while Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, Australia and certain other countries are more selectively represented. Entries are arranged by repository location and most contributors draw upon a special knowledge of the resources described. Contributors include James R. Glenn, National Anthropological Archives; Elizabeth Edwards and Veronica Lawrence, Pitt Rivers Museum, University of Oxford; Francisco Demetrio S. J., Museum and Archives, Xavier University, Philippines; and many others. The guide covers selected documentation in social and cultural anthropology, physical anthropology, archaeology and folklore. Some major area studies collections such as the Asia Collections, Cornell University Libraries and the Melanesian Archive at the University of California, San Diego are also represented. Web URLs have been cited when available and personal and ethnic name indexes are provided.

Anthropologists and the Rediscovery of America, 1886-1965 John S. Gilkeson, 2010-09-20 This book examines the intersection of cultural anthropology and American cultural nationalism from 1886 when Franz Boas left Germany for the United States until 1965 when the National Endowment for the Humanities was established. Five chapters trace the development within academic anthropology of the concepts of culture, social class, national character, value and civilization and their dissemination to non-anthropologists. As Americans came to think of culture anthropologically as a complex whole far broader and more inclusive than Matthew Arnold's, the best which has been thought and said, so too did they come to see American communities as stratified into social classes distinguished by their subcultures, to attribute the making of the American character to socialization rather than birth, to locate the distinctiveness of American culture in its unconscious canons of choice and to view American culture and civilization in a global perspective Ruth Benedict Virginia Heyer Young,2005-01-01 Benedict s work in fact anticipated trends in anthropology in the decades to come by projecting a framework of individuals not only shaped by their culture but also using their culture for personal or collective objectives BOOK JACKET Theory in Social and Cultural Anthropology R. Jon McGee,Richard L. Warms,2013-08-28 Social and cultural anthropology and archaeology are rich subjects with deep connections in the social and physical sciences Over the past 150 years the subject matter and different theoretical perspectives have expanded so greatly that no single individual can command all of it Consequently both advanced students and professionals may be confronted with theoretical positions and names of theorists with whom they are only partially familiar if they have heard of them at all Students in particular are likely to turn to the web to find quick background information on theorists and theories However most web based information is inaccurate and or lacks depth Students and professionals need a source to provide a quick overview of a particular theory and theorist with just the basics the who what where how and why if you will In response SAGE Reference plans to publish the two volume Theory in Social and Cultural Anthropology An Encyclopedia Features Benefits Two volumes containing approximately 335 signed entries provide users with the most authoritative and thorough reference resource available on anthropology theory both in terms of breadth and depth of coverage To ease navigation between and among related entries a Reader s Guide groups entries thematically and each entry is followed by Cross References In the electronic version the Reader s Guide combines with the Cross References and a detailed Index to provide robust search and browse capabilities An appendix with a Chronology of Anthropology Theory allows students to easily chart directions and trends in thought and theory from early times to the present Suggestions for Further Reading at the end of each entry and a Master Bibliography at the end guide readers to sources for more detailed research and discussion A History of Anthropological Theory, Fifth Edition Paul A.

the AAA during the past century The list of the association's presidents reads like a roster of influential scholars from various specializations within anthropology Their histories cumulatively reflect the trends in interpretive thought and fieldwork methodology that have emerged during the past ten decades For each president the book provides a photograph and a biography replete with personal anecdotes career highlights and information about his or her contributions to the development of the discipline of anthropology Important works by each president are listed separately in the back of the volume An introduction by Regna Darnell and Frederic W Gleach summarizes the first century of the AAA and contextualizes the individual stories

Generations of Women Historians Hilda L. Smith, Melinda S. Zook, 2018-07-11 This collection focuses on generations of early women historians seeking to identify the intellectual milieu and professional realities that framed their lives It moves beyond treating them as simply individuals and looks to the social and intellectual forces that encouraged them to study history and at the same time would often limit the reach and define the nature of their study This collection of essays speaks to female practitioners of history over the past four centuries that published original histories some within a university setting and some outside By analysing the values these early women scholars faced readers can understand the broader social values that led women historians to exist as a unit apart from the career path of their male colleagues

Color in the Classroom Zoe Burkholder, 2011-10-05 Between the turn of the twentieth century and the Brown v Board of Education decision in 1954 the way that American schools taught about race changed dramatically This transformation was engineered by the nation's most prominent anthropologists including Franz Boas Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead during World War II Inspired by scientific racism in Nazi Germany these activist scholars decided that the best way to fight racial prejudice was to teach what they saw as the truth about race in the institution that had the power to do the most good American schools Anthropologists created lesson plans lectures courses and pamphlets designed to revise what they called the race concept in American education They believed that if teachers presented race in scientific and egalitarian terms conveying human diversity as learned habits of culture rather than innate characteristics American citizens would become less racist Although nearly forgotten today this educational reform movement represents an important component of early civil rights activism that emerged alongside the domestic and global tensions of wartime Drawing on hundreds of first hand accounts written by teachers nationwide Zoe Burkholder traces the influence of this anthropological activism on the way that teachers understood spoke and taught about race She explains how and why teachers readily understood certain theoretical concepts such as the division of race into three main categories while they struggled to make sense of more complex models of cultural diversity and structural inequality As they translated theories into practice teachers crafted an educational discourse on race that differed significantly from the definition of race produced by scientists at mid century Schoolteachers and their approach to race were put into the spotlight with the Brown v Board of Education case but the belief that racially integrated schools would eradicate racism in the next generation and eliminate the need for discussion of racial inequality long predated this Discussions of race in the classroom were silenced during the early Cold War until a new generation of antiracist multicultural educators emerged in the 1970s 21st Century Anthropology: A Reference Handbook H. James Birx,2010-06-10 Highlighting the most important topics issues questions and debates these two volumes offer full coverage of major subthemes and subfields within the discipline of anthropology
