Toward a Science of Man in Society K.W. Kapp, 2012-12-06 THIS study is concerned with the search for a new unity of social knowledge and social inquiry As such it is addressed to all those who see in the present compartmentalization and special ization of the social sciences the reason for the bewildering pro liferation of subject matters the preoccupation with trivia and the failure to make the maximum use of our knowledge for human welfare More specifically I am addressing this book to those who are dealing with interdisciplinary problems such as the study of foreign areas the analysis of sociocultural change economic development of backward economies and the planning and teaching of integrated courses in the social sciences The book suggests an answer to the question How can our specialized knowledge about man and society be unified As such the study reflects the conviction that all scientific knowledge in order to make the greatest possible contribution to human welfare must become comprehensive in character In fact such knowledge differs from popular and common sense understanding precisely by the fact that it is systematically formulated and held together in terms of a few unifying conceptual frameworks Indeed all scientific understanding is above all an effort to simplify by unifying what has long appeared as unrelated and disparate Those who believe that compartmentalization and specialization are the royal road to success in the social sciences may find this an irritating book

The Making of Indian Diplomacy Deep K. Datta-Ray, 2015 Breaks from the argument that for Indians the moment of colonial liberation was a false one as the colonized had internalized European practices

Exploring 'unseen' Social Capital in Community Participation Sam Wong, 2007 This volume argues that using social capital to eradicate poverty is unlikely to succeed because its mainstream approach mistakenly assumes that social capital necessarily benefits poor people The inadequacy of that assumption Sam Wong argues calls for a reassessment of human motivations institutional dynamics and the complexity of structures in social capital building Proposing a pro poor perspective in which poverty specific outcomes are highlighted he suggests an exploration of unseen social capital is in order not only to challenge the mainstream understanding of seen social capital but to demonstrate the need for everyday cooperation which is shaped by social norms influenced by conscious and unconscious motivations and subject to changes in priority based on livelihood A useful volume for both policy makers and practitioners
