

Anti-Tank Weapons

WW2
FACT FILES

PETER CHAMBERLAIN and TERRY GANDER

Without a doubt the most important new tactical weapon of World War 2 was the tank. Its ascendancy over the battlefields was soon recognized by all the warring nations who produced weapons of varying efficiency in an attempt to reduce its effectiveness and remove its prime tactical asset – mobility. This Fact File sets out to describe and illustrate the anti-tank weapons of all the combatants. Included are anti-tank guns, anti-tank rifles, anti-tank mines and grenades along with recoilless weapons such as the bazooka and German Panzerfaust.

Each weapon is described and illustrated with its relevant data. Not included are the various mobile applications of these weapons such as the German Panzerjäger and British anti-tank gun portees. The weapons described are those designed specifically for the anti-tank role and the book does not include the various 'dual-purpose' guns – these will be covered in future Fact Files.

Mrozek,1993 A reference book covering from Colonial Forces 1607 1773 up to the time of the recent Persian Gulf War The book links military history with developments in technology and science and in 20th century military and naval medicine First it gives unique coverage of the European background of American military affairs and then proceeds concentrating first on eras then on branches of the service in war and in peace Military Review ,1955 Professional Journal of the United States Army ,1980 Soviet Military Thought ,1970 Military Strategy and Tactics Reiner Huber,2013-11-11 This volume brings forth a set of selected papers from the Conference on Modeling Land Battle Systems for Military Planning

Sponsored by the Special Programme Panel on Systems Science of the NATO Science Committee the conference took place in Ottobrunn Germany at the War Gaming Centre of Industrieanlagen Betriebsgesellschaft The idea to organize a conference on land battle system models was first suggested to me in 1972 by Andreas Mortensen then a member of the Norwegian Defence Research Establishment and presently at the SHAPE Technical Centre when we discussed the apparent inconsistencies of various evaluations of force capability within NATO Frequently decision makers are confronted by contradictory results of different studies addressing essentially the same problem leaving them with the impression that the tools of systems analysis and operations research may not be very objective guides However experienced systems researchers know that a detailed comparison of models their assumptions and inputs would generally show that results are not really contradictory But not only seem the decision processes in large national and international organizations to be such that a comparison can hardly ever be accomplished also the documentation available is rarely sufficient to really comprehend the differences in results For these reasons we felt that an effort to review the state of the art of modeling in support of force capability assessments was overdue

Armor, 1958 Operation Barbarossa: the Complete Organisational and Statistical Analysis, and Military Simulation Volume IIB Nigel Askey, 2014-08-26 Volume IIB is the second volume relating to and completing the Wehrmacht and the German mobilisation and war economy from June to December 1941 It includes the most detailed Orders of Battle ever published on the German Heer Luftwaffe Waffen SS and Kriegsmarine in all areas of the Reich between 22nd June and 4th July 1941 Even small and obscure units are included such as flak companies artillery HQs observation battalions bridging columns Landesschützen battalions MP battalions railroad companies and Luftwaffe Kurierstaffeln Verbindungsstaffeln and Sanitätsflugbereitschaften The Luftwaffe OOBs also include details on aircraft types and strengths in each air unit
