application of European competition law took place with the modernization package implemented in the last few years involving the now decentralized application of Articles 81 and 82 EC new merger regulations and the ongoing review of guidelines for the prosecution of abuses of a dominant position This book presents the proceedings of the First Lisbon Competition Law and Economics Conference under the auspices of the Portuguese Competition Authority It was a ground breaking event in which leading European judges and competition enforcers as well as some of the leading world economists and law professors on competition issues took a critical look at the instruments of competition policy conceived to implement EC Regulation 1 2003 with a broader focus on modernization in the EU and in the USA In wide ranging discussions they evaluated theories of harm to competition for the most frequently occurring types of abusive behaviour and developed guidelines for a competition policy that offers both an economically sound framework and a workable and operational tool for making rules that can be enforced effectively and with a reasonable degree of predictability Among the many issues arising in the proceedings recorded in this book are the following special powers of investigation leniency programs and individual sanctions the problem of forum shopping in the present merger regulation system the impact of regulations and competition on economic growth competition and regulatory costs judicial review of the European Commission merger decisions consumer welfare effects of mergers who should apply competition law to utilities and the link between competition and innovation and the development of a country The book will be of immeasurable value to judges academics and economic and law practitioners active in competition policy and enforcement as well as to officials of European national competition authorities Equally interested will be students of law and economics concerned with competition issues and non governmental organizations dealing with consumer protection and private enforcement of competition law By giving ample evidence of the impact of competition and efficient regulation on economic growth this far reaching book will help elucidate the main current topics in need of further reform and underline the importance of competition policy in modern market economies

Competition Law Eugène

Buttigieg, 2009-01-01 Although it is commonly assumed that consumers benefit from the application of competition law this is not necessarily always the case Economic efficiency is paramount thus competition law in Europe and antitrust law in the United States are designed primarily to protect business competitors and in Europe to promote market integration and it is only incidentally that such law may also serve to protect consumers That is the essential starting point of this penetrating critique The author explores the extent to which US antitrust law and EC competition law adequately safeguard consumer interests Specifically he shows how the two jurisdictions have gone about evaluating collusive practices abusive conduct by dominant firms and merger activity and how the policies thus formed have impacted upon the promotion of consumer interests He argues that unless consumer interests are directly and specifically addressed in the assessment process maximization of consumer welfare is not sufficiently achieved Using rigorous analysis he develops legal arguments that can accomplish such goals as the following replace the economic theory of consumer welfare with a principle of consumer well being build consumer benefits into specific areas of competition policy assess competition cases so that income distribution effects are more beneficial to consumers and control mergers in such a way that efficiencies are passed directly to consumers The author argues that in the last analysis the promotion of consumer well being should be the sole or at least the primary goal of any antitrust regime Lawyers and scholars interested in the application and development and reform of competition law and policy will welcome this book They will find not only a fresh approach to interpretation and practice in their field comparing and contrasting two major systems of competition law but also an extremely lucid analysis of the various economic arguments used to highlight the consumer welfare enhancing or welfare reducing effects of business practices

Private Enforcement of EC Competition Law Jürgen Basedow, 2007-03-15 The European Commission s recent Green Paper on damages actions for breach of EC antitrust rules stirred a debate across Europe on the need for legal reform that would encourage private plaintiffs to claim compensation for losses suffered as a result of anticompetitive conduct Prominent in the wake of that initiative was the international conference convened by the Max Planck Institute for Comparative and International Private Law in Hamburg in April 2006 the papers and proceedings of which are presented in this important book Among the topics and issues raised and discussed here are the following the 2001 Courage judgment of the European Court of Justice in which the court decided that everyone who suffers losses from a violation of arts 81 or 82 EC is entitled to compensation relevance of the case law that contributes to general principles of European tort law comparative analysis from the more comprehensive experience of national laws in the United States Germany France and Italy calculation of damages passing on of losses sustained in an upstream market to customers in a downstream market procedural devices which may help to overcome the lack of implementation duties of disclosure and the burden of proof collective actions that may help to overcome the rational abstention of individuals pitfalls of leniency programmes implemented by national competition authorities and issues of jurisdiction and choice of law The lively debates that followed the presentations at the conference are also recorded here Although more discussion will be needed before a

Modernisation of EC Antitrust Law Rein Wesseling,2000-10-19 In recent years European Community EC competition law has come under fire Continued criticism of all aspects of the means by which EC competition law is enforced has brought to light ineffectiveness of the present system Consequently the European Commission has responded by issuing the White Paper on Modernisation which sets out its vision on the future of EC competition law This new book takes a step back and tries to understand the current challenges to EC competition policy by examining the origins of the Community s competition law system In the first part of the book the author sketches the development of Community competition law enforcement between the European Economic Community established in 1958 and the European Union of today Taking this dynamic perspective on EC competition law the second part of the book addresses topical problems of EC competition policy the pertinent objectives the institutional framework the division of jurisdiction between the Community and Member States and decentralised enforcement of Community law Notably the author s conclusions diverge considerably from the analysis found in the Commission White Paper on Modernisation The author proposes various alternative solutions to the existing problems which arguably fit better within the overall constitutional development of the Community than the solutions offered by the Commission The book will be of interest to competition lawyers as well as to all those interested in the constitutional development of the European Community Monopoly, Competition and the Law Tim Frazer,1988 Innovation

Markets and Competition Analysis Marcus Glader,2006-01-01 The book is warmly recommended to practitioners and academics from both the legal and the economic field Guido Westkamp Journal of Intellectual Property Law and Practice Glader offers strong commentary and case explanation coupled with insightful analysis in this complex area This book is strong on both the relevant law and the economics arena in which the law must be applied and deals equally well with the US and EC principles and practice Mark Furse European Competition Law Review The pace and scope of technological change is increasing but some innovative technologies take years before they give rise to saleable products Before they do there is competition in ideas and research but the ideas cannot be market tested because there are no products or services to offer to consumers Competition law in Europe and the USA cannot be applied to competition in research for innovation as if it was competition between products Completely different problems arise and a completely different approach is needed This book the first on innovation markets shows how this new approach has been used by competition authorities on both sides of the Atlantic in a wide variety of cases It analyses in depth and detail the comparative law and economics of the problems arising from the different stages of these markets It considers how far conclusions can be drawn about the future and comes to interesting practical and sensible conclusions And it avoids both unjustified scepticism and exaggerated enthusiasm about the theories of innovation markets John Temple Lang Cleary Gottlieb Steen Trinity College Dublin Ireland and Oxford University UK This book examines the legal standards and their underlying economic rationale for the protection of competition in the innovation process in both European competition law and American antitrust law Apart from relevant regulatory frameworks the author also reviews a range of case laws which assess whether a transaction or unilateral conduct would limit market participants incentives and abilities for continued innovation and future competition At the centre of this study is the innovation market concept This concept entails the delineation for purposes of antitrust analysis of an upstream market for competing R D Questions of market definition the assessment of innovation competition in defined markets the role of efficiencies in the appraisal of transactions and possible remedies to alleviate anti competitive effects are also explored Updating the field of research in light of new developments and broadening and deepening the categorization and analysis of the innovation market area this book will be of great interest to academics practitioners and consultants and also public policymakers

Non-Competition Interests in EU Antitrust Law Or Brook, 2022-07-28 This book is the first to empirically study the role of non competition interests in Article 101 TFEU enforcement
