

AMELIE RIVES CHANDLER.

Amelie Rives Chandler, the American author, was born in Richmond, Virginia, in 1863. Her first effort appeared in the Atlantic Monthly in 1885. The novelist is the granddaughter of William Cabell Rives, who served his country as a Congressman, a Senator, and as Minister to France, and daughter of Colonel A. L. Rives. This gentleman was a godson of Lafayette, was born in Paris, where he was educated to the profession of a civil engineer. He was married in 1861 to a local beauty, a granddaughter of Bishop Moore. Amelie's early life was spent for the most part at Castle Hill, Albemarle county, Va., the country seat of her grand father, who died when she was four years old. She continued to live at Castle Hill two years after this event, her father being occupant of the property. After that time her home was at Mobile, Ala., with long visits to Virginia. Subsequently Miss Rives resided at Castle Hill, where her first literary work was undertaken.
