Ama Handbook For Customer Satisfaction:

AMA Handbook for Customer Satisfaction Alan F. Dutka, 1995 Improving Your Measurement of Customer Satisfaction Terry G. Vavra, 2001-09-25 Since more and more attention is being focused on customer value management it is important to have a resource that synthesizes many bodies of research about how to obtain and interpret customer satisfaction data. It also provides the rationale, identifies opportunities and suggests specific programs to improve the measurement of customer satisfaction in your organization. Serving as a single reference for customer satisfaction measurement technology, this book describes and teaches the five critical skills that should be part of each of your projects: Sampling customer participant selection, Questionnaire design, Interviewing, survey administration, Data analysis, Quality function deployment, building action plans. This book is an ideal follow up and companion to the book by Bob E. Hayes, Measuring Customer Satisfaction. Contents: The Philosophy of Customer Satisfaction, Gaining Access to Customers, Identifying Key Measurement Issues, Designing the Questionnaire, Collecting Satisfaction Data, The Data Cube: A New Way to Look at CSM Data, Analysis, Basic Tools of CSM Analysis, Reporting Basics, A Graphical Approach, Monitoring Changes in Importance, How to Achieve Buy In of Results, Globalizing Satisfaction Measurement.

Customer Satisfaction Measurement on the Internet Katja Hofmaier, 1999-06-09 Inhaltsangabe Abstract Based on the Expectancy Disconfirmation Model, as the underlying construct, methods to measure customer satisfaction with products and the steps to be undertaken in the research process are investigated. The measurement of Derived Satisfaction using disconfirmation was found to be the appropriate approach to CS measurement. The Critical Incidents Technique can be used to assess the influence of exceptional experiences and the customer's evaluation of value added services. The method of Focus Group interviewing is most appropriate for the exploration of important product attributes with customers, while In Depth Interviews structure salespeople and executive interviews. It was also shown that during the research process several points specific to CS measurements need to be accounted for. The Internet services currently used by marketing and social researchers include E mail mailinglists, newsgroups, Internet Chat, the World Wide Web (WWW) and Virtual Worlds. Virtual Worlds being most advantageous for observational studies are not useful for customer satisfaction research. Virtual Communities in turn have some promising characteristics for future use. Internet research methods based on these services include E mail surveys, WWW surveys and online Focus Groups. Common advantages of E mail and WWW surveys include administrative and response speed, cost savings and global reach of respondents. Their greatest common disadvantage is the non representativeness of the respondents for the larger population as well as their self selection. Unless access is restricted to a known population, probability sampling is impossible when using the World Wide Web. Because of its serious disadvantages, the use of online Focus Groups is not yet advisable. Based on these insights, the Internet was found to be an advantageous medium for customer satisfaction studies only if specific conditions are met. Companies need to investigate on a case by case basis if the online measurement of customer satisfaction is possible in their specific situation The recommendations that were made are summarized in the online research process and the decision making framework The results of a survey among market research agencies show that practitioners are to a large extent aware of the limitations within which the Internet can be used for customer satisfaction surveys However especially WWW surveys sometimes are conducted in a way that does
