Aging A Challenge To Science And Society Volume I Biology:

Biology of Aging Robert Arking, 2006-02-02 Robert Arking's Biology of Aging is an introductory text to the biology of aging which gives advanced undergraduate and graduate students a thorough review of the entire field. The mass of data related to aging is summarized into fifteen focused chapters each dealing with some particular aspect of the problem. His prior two editions have also served admirably as a reference text for clinicians and scientists. This new edition captures the extraordinary recent advances in our knowledge of the ultimate and proximal mechanisms underlying the phenomenon of aging. Published Scientific Papers of the National Institutes of Health National Institutes of Health (U.S.), 1982. Each issue lists papers published during the preceding year. Scientific Directory and Annual Bibliography National Institutes of Health (U.S.), 1982. Experimental Life Prolongation Vladimir V. Frolkis, Khachik K. Muradian, 1991-10-24. This book presents results of lifespan prolongation studies obtained from experimental animal models and clinical and epidemiological human investigations. Modern theories, experimental models and mathematical models of aging are described as well as factors identified in lifespan prolongation such as reduced body temperature, calorie and protein restricted diets, antioxidants, entosorption, motor activity, modulators of genome expression, ionizing radiation, vitamins, microelements and revitalizers. Gerontologists, physiologists, biochemists and physicians active in the field of aging will find this book to be an interesting addition to their reference library. Documents for History Maurice Marois, Institut de la vie, 1997.

Essentials of Geriatric Medicine George Fowler Adams, George Adams, 1981. Aging, a Challenge to Science and Society: Biology, 1981. Functional Capacity of Men Born in 1906-10, 1926-30, and 1946-50, 1984. Biologist, 1987.

Biological Aging Measurement Ward Dean, 1988. Challenges of Biological Aging Edward J. Masoro, 2000-09-05. This volume provides the non biologist an overview of what is known about the physiological bases of aging. The author examines the many basic theories and emerging hypotheses underlying the molecular, cellular and systemic processes involved in senescence. He addresses the normal physiological changes that characterize the aging phenotype and also considers the role of many age associated diseases in growing older. Masoro synthesizes a much needed unified theory of biological aging to which explains how and why the body grows into the condition we call old. This text is intended for gerontology students in training as well as for human physiologists interested in gerontology. The Metabolic and Molecular Basis of Acquired Disease: General mechanisms, Environmental aspects of disease, Acquired metabolic diseases, 1990. Insights in Aging, Metabolism and Redox Biology: 2021/2022 Jianhua Zhang, Changhan David Lee, 2024-07-08. We are now in the third decade of the 21st Century and especially in recent years the achievements made by scientists have been exceptional leading to major advancements in the fast growing field of Aging Metabolism and Redox Biology. This editorial initiative of particular relevance is focused on new insights, novel developments, current challenges, latest discoveries, recent advances and future perspectives in the field of Aging Metabolism and Redox Biology. Practical Handbook of Human Biologic Age

Determination Arthur K. Balin, 1994-05-19 This landmark book focuses on the methodology used to measure human biological age. Although functional decline appears to be an inevitable and inescapable consequence of aging, there are often considerable differences between individuals with respect to the rate and extent of this decline. Individuals may be young or old in relation to their number of years. As a result, age-related disease or age-related death may occur at different chronological ages. It follows that the true or practically relevant age of an individual is not adequately defined by the time that has elapsed since birth; rather, it is expressed as biological age, a figure reflecting the individual's progressive inability to respond adaptively to an environmental stress that leads to a decreased viability and increased vulnerability to death. This book features contributions from leading investigators in the field and represents a comprehensive worldwide collection of the most recent research on estimating human biological age. Tests described in the book can be used to monitor the effects of any interventional therapy, including drug treatment, behavioral therapy, and lifestyle modification. Annals of the New York Academy of Sciences Thomas Lincoln Casey, Gilbert Van Ingen, Charles Lane Poor, Edmund Otis Hovey, Ralph Winfred Tower, 2003. Records of meetings 1808-1916 in v 11 27. The Metabolic and Molecular Basis of Acquired Disease R. D. Cohen, 1990. Ageing in Society John Bond, Peter Coleman, Sheila M. Peace, 1993-11-01 This Second Edition has been extensively revised and expanded to take account of recent theory and research. A new chapter has been added dealing with issues of death and dying, and particular attention has been paid to issues of gender and ethnicity in the social structuring of later life. It has been adopted by The Open University as a set book for its course K256 An Ageing Society. Practical Geriatric Medicine Arthur Norman Exton-Smith, Marc Edward Weksler, 1985. The Human Odyssey Paul S. Kaplan, 1988.

Biology of Longevity and Aging Robert Arking, 2018-12-04 The latest edition of Robert Arking's seminal text on the biology of aging takes on an extended title since the field of gerontology has advanced to a point at which it is possible to separate the topic into two implicit subsets: longevity and aging. This multifaceted description of the biology of aging guides the reader through increasingly interesting answers to seven fundamental questions: What is aging? Why do we age? What mechanisms support extended longevity? What determines the onset of senescence? What is the mechanistic basis of senescence? Why do humans live so long? And lastly, what pro-longevity societal interventions are needed? Inevitably, humans will age, but there is no reason why we must suffer from age-related diseases. Aging and longevity are dependent on both genes and social environment. Our biology does not forbid the modulation of aging. What we really want to know is not so much about the biology of aging, which is basically a degenerative process, but rather about biological processes underlying the long-term maintenance of our health. New chapters incorporate the latest developments in the field of gerontology. Research done since the previous edition was published has given us insight into how we may stay healthier longer.
